C. B. Dalton's Character Shown Up by Frank Defense; Four Witnesses Swear They Would Not Believe His Oath

JAPS WON'T TAKE DIAZ AS DELEGATE SENT FROM HUERTA

Will Receive Him Only as Private Citizen and Not as Official Representative of the Mexican Government

GEN. DIAZ NOW ON WAY TO CAPITAL OF JAPAN

Appointed to Express Mexico's Thanks for Japan's Participation in Exercises Attending Centennial

(By Associated Press.)

TOKIO, Japan, Aug. 12.—The Japanese government intimated today to the Mexican government that it would not receive General Felix Diaz as a special envoy to Japan to express the thanks of Mexico for Japan's participation in the Mexican centennial. It is declared that Japan would receive General Diaz only as a private individual.

The Diaz aprty left Seattle yesterday for Vancouver, whence they planned to sail on Wednesday.

General Felix Diaz was appointed special envoy to Japan on July 17, and left Mexico City two days later. He intended to proceed to Japan by way of Los Angeles and Vancouver. In Los Angeles he was met by a hostile demonstration from opponents of the present provisional government of Mexico, and was kept there for several days in consequence of the riot of lengthy dispatches from Mexico City.

It was announced on August 2 by the Japanese legation in Mexico City that the emperor of Japan would be absent from the imperial palace for several weeks.

No Danger of Break Between Leaders of Constitutionalists

(By Associated Press.)

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Aug. 12.—A message received here today from Nogales, Sonora, stated that at a meeting last night, representatives of all constitutionalist factions established a complete understanding and that all dangers of a break between different leaders had been eliminated.

It was stated that upon General Obregon's return he would undertake a vigorous campaign against Guaymas as his chief difficulty in previous attacks upon the federal stronghold—lack of ammunition—had been removed.

HOUSE EMASCULATES PURE ELECTION LAWS

Passes Bill Repealing Law for Primaries Sixty Days Before General Elections

A new registration bill, which it is declared by some of the best thinkers in both the house and senate, will result in nullifying the pure elections statutes enacted in 1908, was passed by the house Tuesday morning during the rush of latter day bills and without, it is said, the members knowing just what he was being voted upon.

This bill provides that state primaries shall not be held later than June 15 preceding the general elections in the fall, and thereby repeals the law which prescribes that primaries shall be held at a date not later than sixty days before the general preceding elections. It was introduced by Representatives Cooper and Crawley, of Ware.

A hot fight will doubtless be made upon this bill in the senate as many of the house members, who did not know it was being voted upon Tuesday, well persuaded to urge the senators to defeat it. Opponents of the measure point out that the constitution of the state requires that the tax books shall be closed six months before the general elections and that this being thus the registrars would not have sufficient time to properly purge the registration lists if the primaries are to be held June 15 or earlier.

WRIGHT CRITICISES LAW.

Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd, is one of the strong men of the house who has foreseen the dangers which lie in the registration bill. He has give nout the following interview of his position on it:

"House bill No. 641 was passed by the house without debate this morning, and in my judgment destroys the value of the registration laws of Georgia so far as the purity of the primary is concerned.

"It provides that all primary elections for state house officers and others shall be held not later than June 15 before the general election in October.

"This practically destroys the value of the law requiring taxes to be paid and the registration books closed six months in advance of the general election because a necessary companion piece of legislation was the law requiring the primary to be held not earlier than sixty days before the October election.

"This primary law with the sixty-day limit did three things.

"First, it allowed the board of registrars ample time to purge the registration lists of all unqualified voters.

"Second, it gave the farmers of the state a chance to get their crops laid by so that they could turn out and vote at the election as an early spring election.

ATLANTA SOLDIERS BRUSH DEATH WHEN TRAIN IS WRECKED

Team on Way to Camp Perry Match in Wreck in Kentucky, None Injured and Many Show Great Heroism

ENGINEER AND FIREMAN DISPLAY GREAT BRAVERY

Georgia Boys Expect to Set Some Records at Big Match, All in Fine Shape—Will Reach Camp Perry Tuesday

BY LIEUT. J. C. ADOLPHUS.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 12.—The Georgia rifle team en route to the Camp Perry shoot, arrived in Cincinnati this morning at 5 o'clock, just eight hours late. We were fortunate to get here at all, as we had one of the worst wrecks for no one to be killed we ever saw. The monstrous big Louisville and Nashville engine left the track right opposite a little station called Hazelpatch, Ky., and a few yards farther turned completely over.

This wreck developed two heroes who are deserving of Mr. Carnegie's hero medals. When the engineer saw that his engine was going over he called to his fireman to jump. The fireman's reply was: "I will stay with her till she stops."

Many lives were saved by the masterly handling of this big engine. There was scarcely a shock when the train came to a standstill, and it was running about 25 to 30 miles an hour.

The best of fellowship exists among the team members. We are anticipating some records to be broken in our class. We arrive at Camp Perry about 6 p. m., provided no accidents prevent. We are looking forward to the good eating that will be waiting for us General Nash is a great believer in a rifle team having plenty of good food.

Mr. H. H. Milner, city passenger agent of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, Atlanta, is to be congratulated upon the way he handled the passenger at the wreck. He is the railroad's representative with the Georgia team.

Side Door Sets Diners Free While Cops Watch

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The thirty guests who were locked up in Healy's restaurant shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, when police surrounded the place under Mayor Gaynor's curfew order that all liquor selling establishments should close at 1 o'clock, escaped through a side door shortly after 3 o'clock this morning.

Thomas Healy, the proprietor, and the guests contended that the mayor's edict had been reversed by a recent court decision. The police, however, locked the doors and claimed to keep the diners there over night.

Jury Routed From Kimball Bedroom by Swarm of Bees

Bellhop Brigade and Chambermaid Corps Caused Hunters of Sweets to Retreat—Frank Jurors Spend Exciting Moments Monday Night

When the jury that is to decide the fate of Leo M. Frank returned to its quarters in the Kimball hotel Monday evening it ran there into an adventure of almost harrowing intensity—harrowing at least when one considers the humdrum monotony of a juror's existence.

A swarm of bees had occupied one of the rooms of the jury suite. Twelve jurors and two bailiffs retired hastily, barricaded themselves in an adjoining room, and sent in a hurry call for bellhops and chambermaids, clerks and managers, to come and evict the intruders.

A quantity of flowers in the jury room had attracted the honeymakers through an open window, though it's a mystery why intelligent bees should have been hunting honey downtown.

Bailiffs Charles F. Huber and A. E. Pennington, in charge of the jury, led the retreat, and the advance of the bell hops was led by Erasmus Jones, colored. The bell hop brigade and the chambermaid corps were severely stung. Casualties among the bees were high, too, for many of them attempted to escape through the glass pane of a closed window. The room was not cleared for several minutes.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—President Wilson today nominated E. T. Schmidt for postmaster at Louisville, Ky.

STANLEY IS NOMINATED POSTMASTER FOR DUBLIN

President Wilson Also Sends Name of S. P. Darley for Vidalia Office

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The row over the Dublin postoffice was finally settled today by President Wilson with the nomination of Vivian L. Stanley, for many years editor and publisher of the Dublin Courier-Dispatch.

Mr. Stanley's name was presented some two or three months ago to the postoffice department by Congressman Hughes, but the nomination was held up because of charges of objectionable political activity that were lodged with Postmaster General Burleson by citizens of Laurens county. It was alleged that Stanley's pre-convention activity against President Wilson was such as to unfit him for the office.

Colonel Ed T. Brown, Walter P. Andrews and William B. Harris, the state chairman, who managed the Wilson campaign in Georgia, made a careful investigation of Stanley's record in the pre-convention fight. They examined the files of his newspaper, and for many of them attempted to escape through the glass pane of a closed window. The room was not cleared for several minutes.

The president today also sent to the senate the following nominations:

Postmasters:

Alabama—W. P. Tartt, Livingston.
Georgia—Sanford P. Darby, Vidalia.
Mississippi—J. P. Robb, Greenville.
North Carolina—George W. Waters, Plymouth; R. P. Gardner, Mount Holly.
Tennessee—Emily Taylor St. John, Harriman; W. F. Holland, Kingston.
Virginia—W. R. Rogers, Crewe.

Italian's Shirt Starts Commotion on Big Ship

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—A shirt caused a commotion in mid-Atlantic during the voyage of the steamer Taormina, which docked today from Italy. Emilio Lombardi, a steerage passenger found the air of the Atlantic so very hot in midocean that he took off his short and flung it on deck.

A fellow-voyager, supposing that the shirt had been discarded by somebody, threw it into the sea. When Lombardi discovered his loss, he was frantic, and shoutingathe Italian equivalent "man overboard." He pleaded for a life-saving crew to recover his garment.

He explained that all the money he had, $200 francs, was sewed in the shirt. But by that time the shirt was far out of sight. Lombardi was taken before the captain, who believed his story, and to save him from deportation when he arrived here the steamship line repaid him with $100 in United States treasury notes.

Murderer Drowns Self To Escape Pursuers

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 12.—Surrounded by a sheriff's posse, John Balkman, a negro who shot Deputy Sheriff Matthis several weeks ago, drowned himself yesterday in Lake Jackson rather than be captured alive. His body was recovered later and showed that he had been wounded three times by Sheriff Houston when he escaped after the shooting.

The negro was chased to the lake by bloodhounds after a colored woman had telephoned to Sheriff Houston that he had stopped at her house during the day for food. Despuite the fact that he had been repeatedly sought by a sheriff's posse Balman never wens far from the scene of his crime.

HAMMOND'S DECISION IN ZACHRY CASE REVERSED

Supreme Court Takes Action, Blease Hands Hot Rap to Governor Slaton

Almost simultaneous with the announcement by Governor Slaton Tuesday mornin gthat he would decline to honor the requisition of Governor Blease, of South Carolina, for Julian J. Zachry, the Augusta attorney, charged with kidnaping his little three-year-old daughter from South Carolina, the supreme court handed down a decision bearing on the litigation which Mr. and Mrs. Zachry have brought in an effort to gain custody of their two minor children.

In this decision the supreme court reverses the judgment of Judge Henry Hammond, of the Augusta circuit, which was to the effect that the ordinary having bear da habeas corpus case and awarded the children to the father the judgment of the ordinary conclusively adjudicated the right of the husband to the children, there being no contention that there had been any change in the status of the case since the ordinary's ruling except the petition for divorce, alimony and counsel fees filed by the wife.

Judge Hammond's decision was rendered a few days after the ordinary awarded the two Zachry children to their father and was based upon the petition for divorce, allmony, counsel fees, custody and support of the children. Later attorneys for Mrs. Zachry certioraried the case from the ordinary's court to the superior court and Judge Hammond gave the children to the father. An appeal on this decision is now pending in the supreme court.

DALTON ADMITS HE SERVED A CHAINGANG SENTENCE FOR THEFT OF A "SHOP HAMMER"

Miss Hattie Hall Swears She Was in Frank's Office Between 11 and 12 o'Clock and That Superintendent Did No Work on Finance Sheet During This Hour—Her Testimony Different in This Respect From What She Swore at Inquest

MRS. WHITE'S BROTHER GIVES DIFFERENT VERSION OF STORY ABOUT SEEING NEGRO LURKING IN FACTORY

Solicitor Dorsey Puts Wade Campbell Through Severe Cross Examination, Calling Attention to Discrepancies in His Testimony and Signed Statement Given to the Solicitor. Frank's Movements on Day of Tragedy to Be Proved Decidedly the feature of the Tuesday morning session of the trial of Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan, was the successful attack made by the defense on the credibility of C. B. Dalton, who had previously testified for the state.

Dalton was recalled to the stand by the defense and by his own admissions, it was shown that he had served a chaingang sentence in Walton county in 1884 for theft; that he was indicted in 1899 for stealing baled cotton, for which he received, to quote his own language, "one-forty-one-eighty;" and that he "hade come clear of stealing corn in Gwinnett county."

Four witnesses, V. S. Cooper, of Monroe, J. H. Patrick, policeman and justice of the peace from Walton county, W. T. Mitchell and I. M. Hamilton, all sworn that they would not believe Dalton on oath. Mrs. Laura Atkinson, of 30 Ellis street, testified that she had met Dalton several times but that she had never met him at the Busy Bee cafe. Mrs. Minnie Smith, an employe of the factory, testified that she did not even know Dalton. Both had been mentioned in Dalton's testimony for the state.

Miss Hattie Hall, stenographer and bookkeeper for Montag Brothers, proved an important witness for the defense. She testified that she went to the factory at Frank's request not later than 11 o'clock on the day of the tragedy, that she remained there until 12 o'clock, leaving as the whistle blew, and that during the period she was there Frank did not work on the financial sheet, which he claims to have prepared during the afternoon. She said that she did not see any little girl entering the factory as she left. Miss Hall also testified that Frank told her over the telephone Saturday morning, when he requested her to come over and assist him, that he had work before him that would occupy him until 6 o'clock in the evening. This testimony was ruled out by the court, after an argument between the attorneys. Miss Hall also told of the people she saw who visited Frank's office Saturday morning between 11 and 12 o'clock, mentioning Miss Corinthia Hall, Mrs. Arthur White, a young woman whom she did not know and two men.

On cross examination the solicitor drew from the witness the fact that her salary at the time of the tragedy was $10.50 per week and that it had recently been increased to $15 per week.

Miss Hall was severely cross-questioned by Solicitor Dorsey who called attention to the fact that when she testified at the coroner's inquest she stated that she had helped Frank fill in the financial sheet on Saturday morning, whereas Tuesday she declared that Frank had done no work on the finance sheet while she was in the office. Miss Hall explained her previous testimony by the statement that she had mistaken the "average sheet" for the finance sheet, and that it was the average sheet on which Frank had worked Saturday morning.

WHEN WAS NEGRO SEEN?

Another important witness examined during the morning was Wade Campbell, brother of Mrs. Arthur White, who had testified that she saw a negro sitting on a box near the stairway on the first floor as she left the factory at 1 o'clock. Her brother swore Tuesday that Mrs. White had told him that she saw the negro as she entered the factory about 12 o'clock, but that when she came out about 12:30 she heard voices but could see no one. The witness was grilled by the solicitor, who called attention to a signed statement given to the solicitor on May 12 which did not coincide in some particulars with his testimony Tuesday.

C. E. Pollard, an expert accountant, testified that he had examined the financial sheet made out by Frank, and that the work Frank claims to have done in the afternoon of the fatal saturday required him three hours and eleven minutes. He found two slight errors in the work.

ELEVATOR BOY TO TESTIFY.

When court recessed at 12:30 o'clock, it was expected that "Snowball," the negro elevator boy at the factory, would be the first witness in the afternoon. He is expected to testify in regard to the alleged suspicious conduct of Jim Conley after the tragedy. Following "Snowball" the defense will probably put up witnesses to prove Frank's movements on the day of the crime. A number of people who saw him at different times during the day and night have been subpoenaed.

Although it has been definitely announced by attorneys for the defense that Frank's character will be placed in evidence and fifty or more witnesses subpoenaed to testify in this connection, it will probably be several days before any of them take the stand. There now seems to be little doubt that the trial will run into its fourth week.

MURPHEY CANDLER AGAIN HEADS THE R. R. BOARD

Judge George Hillyer Is Also Re-Elected Vice Chairman of Commission

At the meeting of the state railroad commission Tuesday morning C. Murphey Candler, of Decatur, was re-elected chairman, and Judge George Hillyer, of Atlanta, was re-elected vice chairman. Their new terms run for two years.

Mr. Candler, who is not only an able lawyer, but one of the best posted railroad commissioners in the United States, has been chairman of the commission since October, 1911. He succeeded Judge H. W. Hill, when the latter was appointed to the state supreme court bench.

Judge Hillyer has been vice chairman of the commission for about six years.

CATTLE NOW MUST BRING HEALTH CERTIFICATES

Fight Begins to Keep Out Cattle Infected With Tuberculosis

Cattle shipped from either the state of New York or the state of Illinois cannot land in Georgia unless they bring a certificate of good health. This in effect is the object of special order No. 13, issued Tuesday by State Veterinarian Peter M. Bahnsen and approved by Agricultural Commissioner J. D. Price.

Dr. Bahnsen states that the reason for this order was that a great many tubercular cattle are being shipped into georgia from New York and Illinois and the department of agriculture is determined to keep infected cattle out of the state. A portion of special order No. 13 reads as follows:

"It is hereby ordered that all cattle originating in either the state of New York, or in the state of Illinois, destined to any point within the state o fGeorgia, must be accompanied by a certificate of health issued by a veterinary inspector of the United states bureau of animal industry.

"Any cattle not accompanied by a certificate of health issued by a veterinary inspector of the United States bureau of animal industry must be held at the state line until they have been inspected and passed by an inspector of the United States bureau of animal industry or the state veterinarian of Georgia or his duly accredited deputy, the expense of said inspection to be paid by the owner of such cattle."

OPPONENTS OF SULZER CAN'T MUSTER FORCES

(By Associated Press.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 12.—The appointed hour for considering the resolution to impeach Governor Sulzer found his friends and foes in the lower house of the New York legislature today jockeying for time to recruit their numbers and to gather in the two score and more absentees from last night's session.

Encounters preliminary to the real fight on the impeachment resolution indicated the inability of the governor's opponents to muster votes sufficient to carry through their program of impeachment. Telegram and telephone wires throughout the state were alive during the morning with appeals to absent members to go to Albany and align themselves on the question.

ROUND UP MEMBERS.

Majority Leader Levy, facing the possibility of failure to procure the seventy-six votes necessary to impeach today, directed that every absent member be peremptorily summoned to Albany. Republican Leader Hinman and Assemblyman Schaap, leader of the handful of Progressives who have espoused the governor's cause, worked no less assiduously to swell the numbers of their followers.

The entire program of impeachment today was imperilled by the absence of eleven men relied upon by majority leaders to gather under their standard. This was indicated by the vote of last night, when only 65 of the 149 assemblymen cast their votes with Mr. Levy. A majority of the elected members is necessary to impeach. Although 75 votes constitute a majority of the house as it now stands, seventy-six votes are needed, inasmuch as the full membership is 150. One member has resigned since election.

"See Naples and Die"

(Ed W. Howe in his Travel Notes.)

The famous expression, "See Naples and die," is founded on a play on words. The saying, "All quiet on the Potomac," is known only in the United States. "See Naples and die" is international. But it does not mean what it appears to mean. In the Bay of Naples there is an island called Morreal, which, in Italian, rhymes in something connected with death. The original saying was "See Naples and Morreal," but in a spirit of levity the English translated the saying, "See Naples and die."

OWNERS WARNED THAT SMOKE LAW IS STRICT

Apartment House Furnaces Must Comply With New Ordinance by Sept. 1

The third and last notice to apartment house owners calling their attention to the fact that aartment house furnaces must be in shape to comply with the new smoke law by September 1 have been sent out by the smoke board.

Chairman R. M. Harwell urges that owners get the furnaces in shape during the summer months, as they will be rigidly required to conform to the law when they are put in operation in the fall.

"If these matters are not attended to now," said Chairman Harwell, "some of the owners will find themselves without heat in their houses when the cold weather comes. We have given them plenty of time, and the third notice is the last one."

The smoke board has much useful information in its files, and this and furnace appliances and plans are at the disposal of any owners who wish to consult the board.

The sooner the owners take up the matter, the better it will be for them and the board, said Chairman Harwell Tuesday.

The smoke board meets at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

INTERNATIONAL TYPOS MEET TO BRING ON FIGHT

Proposition to Change Mode of Government Will Be Warmly Contested

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 12.—The second day's session of the International Typographical union which is assembled here in fifty-ninth annual convention was taken up in the hearing of reports. The credentials committee made its report soon after the session was called to order by President J. M. Lynch, the report being received and adopted.

The preliminary report of the laws committee was submitted next. This committee has been at work for a week previous to the convention and has some important matters yet to settle in the committee room before the final report is submitted.

That there will be protests entered seems certain for the fight witnessed in the opening session of the convention is an evidence of the attitude of the administration forces. The big fight, however, will come Thursday when the Seattle proposition will come up as a special order. This proposition asks for a board of directors of twenty men instead of an executive council of three men.

This afternoon the delegates and their wives were guests of the Nashville committee at a barbecue and dance at Glendale park.

THIEF IN PULLMAN GETS JEWELS WORTH $1,000

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 12.—A thief, disguised as a brakeman, entered a Pullman car in the Union station here today and grabbing a chamois bag, containing $1,000 worth of jewelry, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Beckham, of Shelbyville, Ky., ran out again.

Mr. Beckham's little daughter saw the fleeing thief and gave the alarm. A score of pasengers aided in a chase, but the robber escaped.

HOW MRS. BROWN SUFFERED

During Change of Life—How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Well Woman.

Iola, Kansas.—"During the Change of Life I was sick for two years. Before I took your medicine I could not bear the weight of my clothes and was bloated very badly. I doctored with three doctors but they did me no good. They said nature must have its way. My sister advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I purchased a bottle. Before it was gone the bloating left me and I was not so sore. I continued taking it until I had taken twelve bottles. Now I am stronger than I have been for years and can do all my work, even the washing. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I cannot praise it enough. If more women would take your medicine there would be more healthy women. You may use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. D. H. BROWN, 809 N. Walnut St., Iola, Kan.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

MY ADVERTISEMENTS

Have you noticed my advertisements carefully? If you have you will note that they are always truthful and don't contain anything that I cannot accomplish. I never offer any free treatments or make any guarantees. A doctor who will advertise something that is impossible, or advertise a falsehood will more than likely tell you a falsehood when you consult him, so read an advertisement and study it carefully before you make a move to consult a specialist, and kindly remember when you are thinking of calling to see a specialist that I have been located in Atlanta for nine years, and I can recall to my mind, during that time, no less than twenty different specialists who have advertised in Atlanta and are all now gone. So if you want to place your case in the hands of a specialist be sure that you are placing it in the hands of a reliable one and one who is firmly established.

Sequel To Love for Doll

Maternal Instinct Greatly Developed by Teaching Children to Love their Dolls.

The little child's doll is mother to the most romantic fancy. And in the years that pass, the doll fades into the petals of a June rose, to evolve the most wondrous of all transformations.

Now comes a more serious period when the joy of real motherhood should be as tranquil as best effort can provide.

This is accomplished with a wonderful remedy known as Mother's Friend, an external application so penetrating in its nature as to thoroughly lubricate every cord, nerve, muscle and tendon involved.

There will be no pain, none of that nausea or morning sickness, no sensation of distress or strain of expanding muscles. The nerves, too, will be calm, thus making the period one of restful days and peaceful nights.

Mother's Friend is sold at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. Do not fail to use it regularly as directed. Write to-day to Bradfield Regulator Co., 235 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their valuable book for expectant mothers.

MOTHERS RIGHTS BILL IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Body Also Provides for Three Separate Votes by People on New Charter

Following a debate that lasted for over an hour, the bill of Messrs. Smith, of Fulton, and Olive, of Richmond, known as the mothers' rights bill, was passed in the house Tuesday morning by a vote of 96 to 62.

The measure passed was a substitute by the committee's substitute by Mr. Smith, of Fulton and provides that when the custody of a child is in dispute, the mother shall have equal rights with the father.

As the law now stands the father is recognized as the child's natural guardian and the burden of proof is left on the mother.

The bill as passed favors neither parent but leaves the matter entirely at the discretion of the court to award the child as will be best for its happiness and welfare.

The two authors of the bill, Messrs. Smith and Olive, Mr. Miller, of Bibb; Mr. Fowler, of Bibb and Mr. Wright, of Floyd, made speeches in favor of the measure, along the same lines, declaring that it was only fair to repeal the old English law and give mothers the same chance for her children as to the fathers.

The house was not long in concurring with the senate amendments to the Atlanta charter bill. The only changes in the measure are to have three separate votes by the people, one on the charter alone, one on the referendum clause and the last on the reduction of the recorder's power.

The house, passed, by a large majority, the permanent registration bill introduced by Representatives Cole, of Bartow, and Wright, of Floyd.

The bill provides that the voter has to qualify only once in a lifetime and that he will be automatically registered as he pays his taxes six months ahead of the elections.

The measure was opposed by the larger cities on the grounds that the politicians could use it to advantage by voting "floaters."

HOUSE GETS TO WORK.

With bunt three more days for legislation, the house actually got down to active work Tuesday morning and there is some hope of a few general bills of state-wide importance getting through at this session.

Early business for the day was the passage of a few necessary extra appropriation bills to pay for work done on the capitol and the executive mansion.

Following the passage of the permanent registration bill of Messrs. Wright, of Floyd, and Cole, of Bartow, the bill of Mr. Jones, of Coweta, providing for a home for wayward girls, carrying an appropriation of $30,000, came up in its order.

An effort to table the measure appeared be successful on a rising vote, but when the ayes and nays were called and the motion was lost 54 to 105.

The house, as a committee of the whole, was only a few moments in session and through its chairman, Mr. Moon, of Troup, reported the bill back to the house with the recommendation "do pass."

The measure establishing a home for wayward girls was passed by the house Tuesday by a vote of 115 to 46. The bill was then transmitted to the senate.

THEATRES

(Criticisms of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managements.)

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

There is just enough pathos in the bill at the Forsyth this week to give the audience a chance to rest after two hours of almost endless laughter. The bill makes a good hot weather show, and those who saw it Monday night forgot all about the sizzling August temperature in chuckling over the antics of the comedians and the tuneful songs.

The pathos is furnished by Ralph Herz in an impersonation, "Old Blind Joe," a touching little sketch that made many who saw it swallow a large-sized lump that suddenly came into their wind pipes.

Wood and Wyde made a tremendous hit with their act, "Fifteen Minutes of Music, Rhyme and Reason." There is not as much reason in it as there is rhyme and music.

There was also a comedy sketch of Milo Beldon, "Oh, Doctor;" the Randalls, who put up a fine exhibition of fancy marksmanship; instrumental solos by Branagan and Saville; a musical act by William A. Weston and company, and an acrobatic feature.

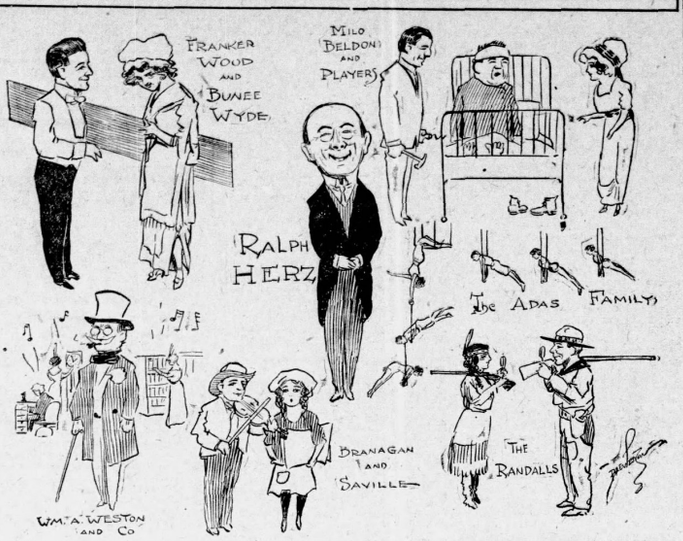
THIS WEEK AT THE FORSYTH



GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Hardeman, of Jefferson, in Race for Congress in Tenth.

Representative R. N. Hardeman, of Jefferson, who for the past several years has been on of the leaders in the house, announced today that he would be a candidate for congress in the Tenth district next fall.

Mr. Hardeman will run to succeed Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick. He will issue his formal announcement later. Judge Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, has already let it be known that he will go after Congressman Hardwick's job, and friends of John T. West, of Thomson, are urging him to make the race.

Congressman Hardwick has not yet stated whether he will seek re-election. He has served his district ably and well for eleven years and has a strong hold upon his constituents.

Mr. Hardeman is quite popular throughout the Tenth district, and the very excellent record which he has made as a member of the legislature has caused him to be looked upon as one of the strongest men in his section.

Former Solon Pays Georgia Legislature a Short Visit.

Jules McCury, of Hartwell, formerly a member of the house of representatives from Hart county and later a state senator, paid the capitol a visit Monday afternoon to see many of his old friends and former colleagues.

State Senate Has Three Days of Easy Work Ahead.

With the passage of the tax equalization bill the senate can look forward to three days of "taking life easy," for on recommendation of the rules committee the senate has agreed not to accept any general house bills which may come to the senate for the first time.

This will leave only local bills to pass and such measures of general interest as are already on the senate calendar. It will not exclude the appropriations budget, as the senate has handled it once before.

Such bills as may be sent to the senate not admissible under the new rule will be returned and must wait until next year to come up for passage.

They Believed ax Measure Would Hurt Rural Sections.

Those senators who opposed the passage of the tax equalization bill on Monday did so in general on the ground that it would work a hardship on the rural communities of the state.

Such senators as DuBose, McGregor and Oliff spoke to this effect, while others who believed with them just as strongly, but who did not speak, did their best to down the measure with their vote.

Senator Le Pope, of the Forty-fourth, was one of the latter. While Senator Pope is not fond of taking the senate floor and to sling oratory right and left, he is always on hand to cast his vote for or against a measure.

Apparently he is not influenced by partisan politics, but thinks deeply on every question and votes as he believes is right and best for the interests of the state. He is one of the few senators who have missed hardly a single session this year, and who never fails to act one way or the other on a question.

They Say Reno Rats Lobbied for the Bill.

Not content with having a Washington, an Athens and a Rome, the state of Georgia must adopt the name of another city famed in the world's history, and create the town of Reno.

Reno, Ga., will be a town just as soon as Governor Slaton affixes his signature to the bill passed by the senate Tuesday morning, already passed by the house. The bill was introduced by Representative Collins, of Grady.

It incorporates the town of Reno, in Grady county, south Georgia. While Reno, Nev., is notorious, the good people of Reno, Ga., do not want their town to be confused with the city of prize fights and divorces. No race suicide for Reno, Ga., they say.

FLAGMAN LOSES BOTH LEGS AS BRAKES FAIL

John E. Weatherd Was Switching Cars Filled With Steel Rails

John E. Weatherd, a flagman on the Southern railroad suffered severe injuries in an accident that happened at Cross Keys about 8:30 Tuesday morning. Both legs were mangled so that amputation was necessary.

From the reports it appears that Weatherd was sidetracking two flat cars piled with steel rails at a siding at Cross Keys. The cars were going down grade and were running toward a freight car also on the siding. Weatherd applied the brakes, which, for some reason, would not work, and the cars went crashing together. The heavy rails slid down and pinned him between them and the car. It took half an hour to get him free. He was carried to Brookwood crossing, where Patterson's ambulance rushed him to the Atlanta hospital.

He is married and lives at 196 West Kimball street. He has been an employe on the Southern for a number of years.

SPECIAL OFFICER TO TRY TO STOP "SHORT WEIGHTS"

A special officer has been detailed to accompany the weight and measure inspector on his rounds in an effort to round up the short weight ice men who have been at work lately. Two of these smaller dealers were caught Monday and five more will be brought before Recorder Pro Tem Preston Wednesday.

SAYS RULES COMMITTEE BLOCKED HIS BOOK BILL

Representative M'Crory Makes Sensational Attack on the Speaker and Committee

Representative McCrory, of Schley, on Monday afternoon made the direct charge in the house that the rules committee had made what appeared to be a studied and concerted attempt to block the consideration of his school book bill.

Mr. McCrory, on a point of personal privilege, declared that Speaker Burwell had promised him last Saturday that his bill should come up for consideration in the house the first thing Monday morning. The bill, known as house bill No. 32, gives the superintendent of education power to have certain text books open to competitive bids, and to award the contract of printing them to the lowest bidder, the books then to be sold the school children at cost.

Mr. McCrory said he relied on this promise of the speaker that his bill would be considered Monday morning, but he waited patiently all the morning, and then part of the afternoon, only to see the house pass its time on trivial matters.

The trivial matters to which Mr. McCrory referred were a fish bill and a measure against the killing of heifers two years old or under. He said that this was the last day that the senate could accept a house bill, and that the rules committee knew this. He charged that the committee put fish and heifers above the rights of 800,000 school children.

Replying to the charge, Speaker Burwell said that he was not the whole committee. He said also that he had made Mr. McCrory no definite promise to make his bill the first order, but had said that the bill would follow the order assigned last Saturday.

Following that order, he said, the fish and heifer bills had been considered first, and had taken up more time than he had thought. Several members had made speeches when their names were called, and this consumed a lot of time.

Want a Good Dog? See City Clerk Taylor

Anybody who wants to get a good dog cheap can secure one from the city dog catcher.

The society for the protection of dumb animals sent a representative to City Clerk Walter Taylor, who sends out the dog wamon, to ask that those impounded be put to death humanely and that all of them be held for forty-eight hours in order that owners may rescue their pets.

Dogs of all kinds are taken up by the dog wagon, and many of them are fine dogs; so anyone who wants a dog may get a fine one for only $1.25, the price of a tag.

Many owners go away for the summer and leave their dogs in care of the servants, and it sometimes happens that these dogs get taken up, too. If they are not redeemed they are put to death as well as the mangy little street dogs.

Died Monday

WILLIAM L. WELLS,

Who died Monday afternoon of apoplexy. Mr. Wells was a noted railroad conductor. He had served on the Southern since its organization and was on the old East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia road. He was a member of the Atlanta lodge of Masons, No. 59, and of the Georgia division Order of Railway Conductors No. 547. The pallbearers will be from this organization.

Mr. William Lacosta Wells, aged 51 years, died Monday afternoon at the residence, 200 Crew street. His death resulted from a stroke of apoplexy.

Mr. Wells was a noted railroad conductor. He had been connected with the old East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia road and had been on the Southern since its organization. His run was on the fast train between Atlanta and Chattanooga.

He was a prominent member of the Pryor street Presbyterian church, the Atlanta lodge, No. 59, of the Masons, and the Georgia division, No. 457, Order of Railway Conductors.

He came to Atlanta from South Carolina, Sumter county, in 1885. He is survived by his wife, four children and two brothers, Mr. R. E. Wells, of St. Charles, S. C., and Mr. N. E. Wells, of Memphis, Tenn.

His remains were removed to Patterson's chapel and the funeral will be from there Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The interment will be in West View. The pallbearers will be selected from the Division of Railway Conductors, No. 457.

C. B. DALTON'S CHARACTER IS SHOWN UP BY FRANK DEFENSE

tified that it was made on the 18th and 19th of April. Attorney Arnold drew out of the witness that this might have been a mistake on the part of the men who furnished data to him, and not on Frank's part. In the column on which the financial sheet headed "Value of Products," he found another error, he said, of 45 cents. Those two were the only discrepancies he found in Frank's work, he said.

WITNESS CROSS-EXAMINED.

Attorney Hooper cross-examined the witness.

"This is an unusual kind of a job for you, isn't it?" asked Mr. Hooper.

"I don't think so, sir. I am frequently called on to say how long certain work should take."

"Are you a rapid worker?"

"I don't know."

"Well, you should know. That's the only way we can find out these things."

"I am considered rapid."

"You say you consider three hours and eleven minutes a very good time for completing this sheet?"

"I am speaking of myself."

"Could you tell the jury whose mistake it was on the 18th and the 19th?"

"I cannot."

"Isn't it true that one can work his own books quicker than anybody else?"

"Yes, sir."

The witness testified that the 45 cents discrepancy wouldn't have grown as the calculations went on.

Attorney Arnold asked. "That mistake grew out of one single multiplication, didn't it?"

"Yes."

In answer to another question by Attorney Arnold, he estimated a minimum of 200 small calculations necessary for the completion of the work.

"Do you consider this mistake of 45 cents serious?" asked Attorney Arnold.

"It's not so serious, but it is a mistake nevertheless."

MISS HALL TESTIFIES.

The witness was excused, and Miss Lattie Hall, stenographer and bookkeeper employed by Montag Brothers, was called to the stand as the next witness.

Miss Hall testified that she did work for the National Pencil company, going there when necessary.

"Did you ever go there previous to April 26?" asked Attorney Arnold.

"Yes."

"Did you see Mr. Frank on April 26?"

"Yes."

"When was the first time on that day you saw him?"

"At Montag Brothers around 10 o'clock that morning."

"Did you have any conversation with him?"

"Yes, sir; he came into Mr. Sig Montag's office, where I was at work. I told hi mI didn't know whether I could do the work or not, because Mr. Sig Montag was out and he might come back so late that it would throw me late getting through with his work."

"Did he say much—?"

LAWYERS ARGUE POINT.

Solicitor Dorsey objected on the ground that a statement by Frank as to how much work he had for the witness to do would be a self-serving declaration and would not be admissible. Attorney Arnold insisted upon the question, declaring that everything Frank did or said on the day of the crime was admissible, and certainly that if he planned a quantity of work for Saturday afternoon it was certainly permissible for the defense to show that. Judge Roan called for authorities, and the argument consumed several minutes.

Judge Roan ruled to admit the question if the defense could show later that the stenographer did that work.

"What was that conversation, Miss Hall?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"We had had a conversation over the telephone first," said Miss Hall. Solicitor Dorsey objected, but the question was admitted when Miss Hall said she recognized Frank's voice over the telephone.

"I had called him over the 'phone about a duplicate bill, and then he told me to come over and help him for he had work that would take him until 9 o'clock."

Solicitor Dorsey objected immediately. Attorney Arnold argued the point. He said that the solicitor had indicated by his questions that he would claim that the financial sheet was completed in the morning, and that the testimony of this witness regarding the conversation was essential to show that it was not Frank's intention to do that in the morning, and that he had mapped out before him work that would keep him until 6 o'clock at night. Mr. Arnold said it would do "this young man" Frank a great injustice to shut out anything relative to his program on that day. Supporting his contention, Mr. Arnold quoted from a case which he said he and the late Judge R. T. Dorsey, father of the solicitor, had tried in 1882. Solicitor Dorsey followed Mr. Arnold and argued at length on the legal principle involved in the point. Attorney Hooper completed the state's argument on the subject, taking the position that the statement would be purely a self-serving declaration, in anticipation of the crime to follow. "We have shown that the day before he refused to send this girl he money," said Mr. Hooper, "and that before this conversation with Miss Hall occurred he had arranged to secure a watchman for the evening."

JUDGE SUSTAINS STATE.

Judge Roan held that the witness could show that she was called to go to Frank's office for certain work and that she could tell about that work; but he sustained the state by ruling out Frank's alleged statement to her that he had work which would take him till 6 o'clock.

Miss Hall continued that Frank came to Montag's about 15 or 20 minutes after the telephone conversation, and that she at first told him she couldn't help him because Mr. Sig Montag had gone to dictate some letters. Mr. Montag finished his dictation very quickly, she said, and Frank was still in the office. She then told him that she would go over.

Between 10:30 and 11 o'clock, she said, she started for the factory. She was certain that she arrived there before 11 o'clock. She entered the office and waited a few minutes. Her memory is not very clear on the point, she said, but she remembered that she went a little later into Frank's office and got some orders, ten or eleven, which she took to the outer office and acknowledged. She identified ten of these orders by her initials on them—H. H. She said that all of these orders had been brought to the factory by Frank from Montag's that morning. She said that two men who worked in the factory came in. She did not know their names. They talked with Frank a few minutes. She remembered also, she said, the arrival of a young woman, whom she had learned is Miss Corinthia Hall, and of another young woman. She remembered also Mrs. Arthur White, she said. Mrs. White asked her if she could see her husband, said the witness, and the witness referred her to Mr. Frank. In answer to questions she declared that during that time Frank was doing no regular work. She said positively that during the time she was there he was not working upon the financial sheet.

Miss Hall answered by saying that she is not very familiar with Frank's handwriting. At the request of Attorney Arnold she looked into the order book and said, however, that the writing there looked like Frank's.

"Did Frank dictate any letters to you Saturday morning?"

"Yes." Miss Hall identified eight letters which she said she had written from Frank's dictation, and which were exhibited to her by Attorney Arnold. She said that Frank dictated them in the inner office, and that she then had taken them back to him for his inspection and signature, with a carbon copy of each.

Holding up before her the financial sheet, Attorney Arnold asked her: "Was Frank doing any work on this financial sheet while you were there that morning?"

"No, sir."

"What time did you leave the pencil factory?"

LEFT AS WHISTLE BLEW.

"I left the outer office just as the 12 o'clock whistle blew."

"What did you do then?"

"I walked out of the building and got downstairs, when I happened to think that I'd left my umbrella, and I went back in and got it and left the building. As I went by the time clock on my way out it was 2 minutes after 12 o'clock."

"Did you see any little girl around there about then?"

"No, sir."

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined the witness.

"What time did you leave Montag Brothers to go to the factory?" asked the solicitor.

"Between 10:30 and 11 o'clock."

"Did you call Frank on the telephone, or did Frank call you?"

"I called him."

"You had a regular stenographer there the day before, didn't they?"

"Yes, but she wasn't very good." "I didn't ask him all of that," commented the solicitor. "How much were you making in salary at that time?"

"Ten dollars and a half a week."

"How much are you getting now?"

"Fifteen dollars a week."

"When did you get this increase?"

"August 1."

"And you didn't ask for it, did you?"

"Indeed I did."

"Didn't you say last nikht, downtown at the soda fount, that you didn't ask for it?"

"I did not. I don't even go to the soda fountain."

"Didn't you tell friends that last night?"

"I did not."

"Well, you insisted on going from Montag Brothers over to the pencil factory, didn't you?"

"Mr. Frank wanted me to go over. The insisting was on the other end."

Solicitor Dorsey asked her if she did not testify before the coroner's jury that Frank was at the factory when she arrived. She sai dthat she did not remember testifying that. Answering another question, she said that she does not know now whether Frank was there when she arrived.

FRANK WASN'T WITH HER.

"Frank did walk over with you, did he?"

"No, sir."

"He knew you were going over, though, didn't he? And yet he didn't go with you?"

"Yes, but he didn't know when Mr. Montag was going to finish his dictation."

"You acknowledged these orders, and wrote the letters between 11 and 12 o'clock, didn't you?"

"Yes, between the time I got there and the time I left."

"You don't know how long it was before Frank left Montag's, that you left, do you?"

"No."

"You didn't go together, you say?"

"No."

"How long did it take you to fill out the blanks in the order book?"

"I don't know."

"Didn't you say before the coroner's jury that it took about a minute to fill out each blank?"

"I don't know whether I did or not."

"Did you see any one come in?"

"Yes, those two men and three women."

"Who were the men?"

"Those men whose sons had had trouble in the police court."

"You mean the automobile trouble?"

"Yes."

"Who were the women?"

"One of them was Corinthia Hall and the other was a woman who had married the day before."

"What time did they leave?"

"I don't know, but it was after the office boy left, and he left at 11:30."

"Didn't you say at the coroner's inquest that you didn't know what time they left?"

"Maybe I did, but Alonzo said he left at 11:30 o'clock."

"Oh, you've talked it over since then, eh?"

"No, I haven't talked it over. Alonzo just mentioned it to me."

A READ WITNESS.

"Have you talked it over with Mr. Arnold and Mr. Rosser?"

"Haven't your witnesses talked to you?" demanded Miss Hall.

The bailiffs rapped for order when there was laughter in court.

"You wrote those letters on the typewriter?"

"Yes."

"How long did it take you?"

"I don't know. I started about two minutes after he finished dictating."

"After you'd finished taking dictation, what did you do?"

"I went into the outer office."

"Where did you take dictation?"

"I took it in the inner office."

"How long did it take you to transcribe it?"

"I don't know."

"Can't you approximate the time?"

"No, I cannot."

"You didn't stop did you while you were transcribing?"

"Yes, I stopped once, and told that woman where Mr. Frank was."

"While you were transcribing did you see Frank except when he came to the door to speak to Mrs. White?"

"Yes, he came to the door and talked to those two men, I saw him then."

"After you'd finished transcribing, what did you do?"

"I took the letters to him to sign."

"What did you do then?"

"Put on my hat and left. And I'd like to say right here that he folded the letters and put them in the envelope himself."

"Did you ask him if he wanted to look over the letters before you left?"

"Yes, and he said no, that he'd look them over later."

"What else did he have to do?"

"From the looks of his desk, he had lots to do."

"Did you get anything from there Monday?"

"Yes, among other things the bank book."

"Did you remember Frank working on the finance sheet that Saturday morning?"

"No, he was not working on the finance sheet, although I helped him with some data for the finance sheet."

"Didn't you swear at the coroner's inquest that he did work on the finance sheet?"

SHE WAS MISTAKEN.

"Maybe I did, but I was mistaken, because at that time I thought the average sheet was the finance sheet."

"How long have you been at Montag's?"

"Since last December."

"The finance sheet comes over there every Monday morning, doesn't it?"

"I reckon so, but I have nothing to do with it."

"Who showed you the difference between the average sheet and the finance sheet?"

"I saw the difference myself when I saw a finance sheet."

"Didn't you swear at the coroner's inquest that you helped fill in the finance sheet on that Saturday morning?"

"Yes, maybe I did, but I was mistaken. It was the average sheet we were working on."

"So you've discovered your mistake since the coroner's inquest, have you?"

"Yes."

"When did you discover this mistake?"

"I don't know exactly, except that it was a finance sheet. I want you to understand, though, that no one had said anything to me about it."

"Well, if you can't tell exactly, tell it to the best of your knowledge when you discovered your mistake."

"Soon after the coroner's inquest, I suppose."

"Didn't you have the finance sheet on April 26 shown to you at the coroner's inquest, and didn't you tell them that was the sheet you and Frank worked on Saturday morning?"

"I don't think I did."

"Didn't you tell the coroner's inquest that he worked on a finance sheet on the previous Saturday morning also and that you helped him then?"

"Maybe I did, but if so I was mistaken, because it was the average sheet he was working on."

TRIES TO TRAP HER.

Solicitor Dorsey continued his efforts to trap the witness by use of her testimony at the coroner's inquest.

"Were you in the inner office except when Frank was dictating those letters."

"Yes, when I got the orders."

"When did you remember that you were in there more than once?"

"I don't remember."

"Wasn't the direct question asked you at the coroner's inquest, when your memory was supposed to be fresher than it is now, and didn't you say then, 'I remember only going in for the dictation?'"

"I don't know."

"When did your mind undergo this change?"

"I don't know."

NOT SO EMBARRASSED.

"Well, why did you change?"

"At the coroner's inquest it was the first time I'd ever been to court, and I wasn't fully at myself."

"I see. You've talked more with lawyers and are more familiar with it now?"

"No, I'm just not as embarrassed at being in court."

"Then you were in there only two times. You are certain of that?"

"Yes, and I want to say that once while I was in there I heard Mr. Frank have Alonzo call up Mr. Schiff and tell him to come down there."

"At the coroner's inquest, you said you knew the looks of the financial sheet?"

"Yes, but I thought it was the average sheet."

"And this, despite the fact that you've worked at Montag's since December?"

"Yes, but I hadn't seen the financial sheet."

"You say those girls came to get a coat?"

"Yes."

"Didn't you tell at the coroner's inquest that they came for the money of one of them?"

"Yes, that's true, but they came for the coat, too."

"And you said then that you had helped on the previous Saturday to get up the financial sheet?"

"Yes, but I thought it was the average sheet."

"Frank didn't call on you to help on the financial sheet on the 26th?"

"He said he couldn't get up the financial sheet until Mr. Schiff came down and got up certain data. He said exactly, 'I can't finish my work till Schiff gets up his.'"

WHAT SHE TOLD CORONER.

"Didn't you tell the coroner's jury that you didn't help on the financial sheet because you had to leave at 12?"

"Yes, but I meant the average sheet."

"Didn't we show you the financial sheet and ask you if it was Frank's handwriting, and didn't you say that it looked like the same but you couldn't be sure; that slanting hands looked alike?"

"Yes."

"Well, how on earth could you look at this small sheet," holding up the financial sheet, "written with a pen, and called the financial sheet, and now say that you mistook it for this big sheet written in pencil?" The solicitor held up the average sheet.

"Didn't you say then that you couldn't tell whether or not it was Frank's handwriting? And now you turn up and say that it looked like Frank's handwriting?"

"Well, at the coroner's inquest I said I couldn't swear about it—that I could not tell whether it was his or not."

"Didn't you say then that you didn't see the books, but that Frank was working?"

"Yes."

"Well, how did this work look that was piled up on his desk?"

"They were letters, largely."

"How do you know that the financial sheet was not on the desk?"

"I would certainly have seen a sheet that big."

"And yet you say that when you didn't know the financial sheet?"

"Yes, but I would have seen a sheet that big."

"Come down," said the solicitor. "Wait a minute," said Mr Arnold

"Did you say that while you were there you heard Alonzo call up Schiff at Frank's direction?" asked Mr Arnold.

"Yes"

EXPLAINS SALARY INCREASE.

"You say your salary was raised this month. Wasn't there some kind of an agreement about that when you were employed?"

"Yes. I was to get $50 a month until the busy season, and then $15 a week. I asked for more money on July 1, but they wanted to wait until August 1."

Holding up the financial sheet made out by Frank, Attorney Arnold asked, "Did you see Frank work on any of these financial sheets?"

"No, sir."

"Look and see if you put a single figure on that," said he, walking toward the witness chair.

"No, sir, I have not," answered the witness.

The average sheet which is made out as a preliminary operation was shown to her and she identified that as the sheet which she had worked on on previous occasions.

Attorney Arnold picked up the bound financial sheets made out before April 26. He turned to the sheetmadeout 26. He turned to the sheet made out April 10 and asked if she had assisted in compiling it. She replied that she was not there on April 10. The same was testified regarding the sheet of April 5. She said, too, in answer to further questions that she had never worked on a single financial sheet.

WANTED HER IN AFTERNOON.

"Why did you tell Frank you could not stay after 12 o'clock."

"I told him I'd have to get off at 12 o'clock."

"I believ eyou said you left at two minutes after 12? Did you see Lemmie Quinn there before you left?"

"No, sir."

DALTON IS CALLED.

There was a five-minute recess, and C. B. Dalton was called by the defense.

"Who is Andrew Dalton?" asked Attorney Arnold, reading from papers in his hand.

"He is my brother-in-law."

"He has the same name you have, has he?"

"Yes."

"Who is John Dalton?"

"He is my cousin."

"Weren't all three of you sent to the chaingang in Walton county in 1894 for theft?"

"No, sir, I was the only one that was sent."

"You were sent there in March

C. B. DALTON'S CHARACTER SHOWN UP BY DEFENSE

weren't you?"

"Yes. Then I was pardoned out next month."

"I move to rule out the part of that answer about the pardon," said Attorney Arnold, addressing the court. It was stricken from the erecord.

"How long did you serve?"

"Up till April, 1912."

"Didn't you plead guilty in three cases?"

"No, sir."

"Didn't you plead guilty in three different cases and serve concurrently for all three in the chaingang?"

SYOLE A SHOP HAMMER.

"I don't know about that. But I do know that a shop hammer was all I stole."

"In 1899, at the February term of court, weren't you indicted for stealing bale cotton?"

"Yes, sir, for that."

"What did you get for that?"

"One forty-one-eighty. It was assumed that the interest meant his fine.

"Where did you go after that?"

"I went to Gwinnett county."

"Weren't you indicted there?"

"No. I had not been arrested for stealing corn, but I come clear."

Solicitor Dorsey cross-questioned the witness.

"How long since you've been in trouble?" the solicitor asked.

"About eighteen years."

"What condition were you in when you got into trouble?"

"Me and the boys got drunk and stole a shop hammer."

Attorney Arnold asked, "Aren't you under indictment now from the 1906 term of court for selling liquor?"

"If I am, I don't know it."

"Isn't it a fact that you were allowed to get out of the county, and that they were glad to get rid of you that they never sent for you?"

"No, I don't think so. The day I left I was hard hunting all day with the sheriff."

Solicitor Dorsey: "Do you know if Daisy Hopkins knows Leo M. Frank?"

"Yes, I saw her talking to him. And she told me about it."

WILL CALL DAISY AGAIN.

Attorney Reuben Arnold objected to what Daisy Hopkins told the witness, and Solicitor Dorsey promised to question no further, stating that he would put Daisy Hopkins herself on the stand later.

V. S. Cooper was the next witness called by the defense. He is a citizen of Monroe, Walton county. He established that he would not believe C. B. Dalton on oath. He went to the stand with his little eboy, about four years old. He was offered to hold the little child while Mr. Cooper testified, but the father declined. Attorney Arnold then stated that the child, Mrs. Hall, was sitting just by the witness stand, would hold the little boy, but Mr. Cooper said that would be all right; he'd keep him. The boy stood between his father's knees, therefore.

WITNESS HAD GONE.

During the testimony by Mr. Cooper, Attorney Arnold called for C. B. Dalton to be brought back into court for positive identification by Mr. Cooper. When Dalton's name was called, there was no response, and Attorney Arnold said: "See there, your honor! We asked that witness not two minutes ago to stay around here because we'd want to call him again in a few minutes; and now he's gone."

Solicitor Dorsey put an end to the discussion by admitting that the C. B. Dalton in question was the one who had just left the stand. He did not cross-examine Mr. Cooper.

The defense next called to the stand J. H. Patrick, a carpenter, policeman and justice court bailiff, of Walton county. He testified that he would not believe Bertus Dalton on oath. Attorney Arnold asked him if that was C. B. Dalton. Witness said he didn't know the man by those initials, but that this morning in the witness room he had seen the man he was talking about and had shaken hands with him. Solicitor Dorsey admitted the identity of Dalton. Mr. Patrick caused some amusement in the court by addressing Attorney Arnold as "brother," in country fashion. Attorney Arnold joined in the hearty laugh, and when Mr. Patrick, leaving the stand, asked if he could "set in court a while," Mr. Arnold replied so everyone could hear it: "Yes, brother, you can stay here as long as you want to, and we are very much obliged for your testimony."

W. O. Mitchell, a Walton county farmer, was sworn next by the defense. He testified also that he would not believe Dalton on oath. So also did I. M. Hamilton.

NOT AT BUSY BEE.

Mrs. Laura Atkinson, of 30 Ellis street, employed by the Empire Printing company, was called to the stand. She testified that she had met C. B. Dalton on three occasions, but that she had never met him at the Busy Bee cafe. She said that at one time for a couple of days she worked for the pencil company.

"Did you ever go to the pencil factory with him after hours?" asked Attorney Arnold.

Solicitor Dorsey objected on the ground that Dalton had not alleged wrongful relations between himself and the witness.

"I think it's wrong for any woman just to be with him," said Mr. Arnold, withdrawing the question.

On cross-examination, Solicitor Dorsey asked her who runs the Empire Printing plant. She replied, "A Mr. Hirsch."

Mrs. Minnie Smith was called to the stand. She has worked in the National Pencil factory for the past four years and is the only Mrs. Smith employed at the National Pencil factory, who lives at 148 South Pryor street. She declares that not only had she never met C. B. Dalton at the Busy Bee, but that she didn't know him at all. She said she had spoken to Superintendent Frank only five or six times during her four years at the factory.

OFFICE BOY TESTIFIES.

Alonzo Mann, office boy of the National Pencil factory, was called as the next witness. He has been employed at the factory since April 1, of this year. He was frightened evidently by his experience in a court, and the stenographer had difficulty in hearing his answers. He said that he had worked at the factory two Saturdays previous to the tragedy and that he did not know Mary Phagan even by sight. He said that he left the factory on the day of the tragedy about 11:30 and that so far as he remembers he left there only Miss Hall, the stenographer, and Frank. The boy said that he remembered telephoning to Herbert Schiff at Frank's direction, but was notified by a servant at the Schiff residence that the young man had not arisen.

"During Saturdays, how late did you usually stay?"

"About 3:30 or 4 o'clock."

"Was Mr. Frank working in the afternoons of the previous Saturdays?"

"He was there, but I don't know what he was working on."

"Did you ever see Frank bring any women into his office and treat them to drinks?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ever see a fellow named Dalton around there?"

"No, sir."

"Whom do you remember seeing around the factory that Saturday?"

HE DIDN'T REMEMBER.

Alonzo mentioned Mr. Holloway, Mr. Irby, McCrary, the negro drayman, and Mr. Darley. He said that he couldn't remember anybody else. Attorney Arnold asked him questions in succession, if he saw Lemmie Quinn, Miss Corinthia Hall, Miss Emma Freeman, Mrs. Arthur White, or Wade Campbell. He said that he did not remember seeing any of them.

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined the office boy.

"Was Frank at work that Saturday morning?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes, sir."

"What time did he get there?"

"I don't know."

"Did he go right to work when he got there?"

"He went right on into his office."

"Did he go out that morning at all?"

"Yes, sir, he went out once."

"Do you know how long he was gone?"

"I don't know."

WADE CAMPBELL TESTIFIES.

Wade Campbell was called to the stand as the next witness for the defense. He said he had worked for the National Pencil factory a year and a half. Attorney Arnold asked:

"Do you remember a conversation with your sister, Mrs. Arthur White, on the Monday following this tragedy? Just tell the jury what you said in the conversation that related to seeing a negro there."

Campbell faced the jury and said that Mrs. White said that as he went into the factory about 12 o'clock she saw a negro sitting on a box on the first floor, and when he came out about 12:30 she heard voices, but couldn't see anybody nor tell where the voices came from.

"Were you at the factory on aSturday, April 26?"

"Yes."

"What time did you get there?"

"About 9:30 o'clock."

"Did you see Mr. Frank?"

"Yes, sir, when he was walking around in the outer office."

"He wasn't working when you saw him, then, was he?"

"No, sir. He had a club which he used to play with, in his hand, and he was out playing with it. He joked with me. He said he thought when I came up I wanted to borrow money."

"What time did you leave?"

"About 12 o'clock."

"What do you do at the pencil factory?"

"I'm an inspector."

"Did you know Mary Phagan well enough to speak to her?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever see Frank talk to her?"

"No, sir."

"On Tuesday following this tragedy, were you on the fourth floor when Frank came up there?"

"I went up with him."

"What were you doing up there?"

"I was working up there."

DIDN'T SEE CONLEY.

"Did you see the negro Conley talk to Frank up there?"

"I don't remember seeing him up there at all."

Solicitor Dorsey took the witness on cross-examination.

"You board with N. V. Darley, manager of the pencil factory, don't you?" asked the solicitor.

"I did until a few weeks ago."

"Where were you Saturday night, April 26?"

"I went to the Bijou theater."

"With whom?"

"With Mr. Darley—"

Attorney Rosser objected. Solicitor Dorsey, contended that he had a right to show the relationship between the witness and Darley. Judge Roan sustained Mr. Rosser. Solicitor Dorsey, however, continued to argue, and Attorney Rosser asked the court to send the jury from the room if the solicitor was going to continue his argument. The solicitor surrendered the point.

"Do you know Miss Dixon?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes," answered the witness.

"Did you see her Saturday night, April 26?"

Attorney Rosser objected.

Solicitor Dorsey said he was willing to let the question go out. There followed an exchange of sharp comments among the attorneys. Attorney Arnold he didn't believe the state should ask such questions. Solicitor Dorsey answered that he didn't know whether Judge Roan would allow it in or not. Attorney Rosser spoke up. "Well, you know it's not legal, don't you?" he demanded. "No, I don't know it's not legal, till the judge rules on it," the solicitor replied.

SOLICITOR PASSES QUESTIONS.

Judge Roan sustained the solicitor, but Mr. Dorsey said that inasmuch as there was objection to that line of questions he would pass them.

"You went to see your sister on Monday, April 28?"

"Yes."

"What time of day was it?"

"Some time in the afternoon."

"Who sent you?"

"Darley sent me."

"Did you report to him what she said?"

"Yes."

"What did she say?"

"She said a negro was sitting on the box at the front of the stairs when she went into the factory about 12 o'clock."

"What did she say as to what she saw when she came out of the factory?"

"She said when she came out she heard low voices but she couldn't tell where they were."

SAW BLOOD SPOT.

"You saw the place where the blood was said to be, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Where was it?"

"In the metal room on the second floor near the women's dressing room."

"How close to the dressing room was it?"

"I can't say, as I paid no particular attention to it."

"You must have looked at it, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes, I looked at it."

"Describe it then. Tell what it looked like. How big a blood spot was it?"

In answer to the last question the witness indicated with his hand a space about as large as man's ordinary straw hat.

"Go ahead and tell us some more about it."

"That's about all I noticed."

"You'd heard of the murder, hadn't you?"

"Yes."

"And yet you didn't look close at this blood spot?"

"No."

"You knew it was a blood spot, didn't you?"

"They said it was."

"What part of the factory do you work in?"

"I work as an inspector all over the factory."

"You made a statement to me in my office on May 12, didn't you?"

"I made one statement. I don't remember what the date was."

"Didn't you say in that statement that your sister said she saw the negro as she came out of the factory?"

"I did not."

"I asked you how he looked, and she said she couldn't remember. Isn't that correct?"

"Yes, that's correct."

"Didn't she say it was about 12:30 when she came out?"

To this question Attorney Rosser objected. Solicitor Dorsey showed the witness his signed statement, and asked if that was his signature. The witness said it looked like his signature, and then said he couldn't swear whether it was his or not.

DOESN'T DENY IT.

"Then," demanded the solicitor, "you deny that you gave this answer, do you?"

"No, I don't deny it."

"Didn't you make certain changes and corrections in the affidavit after it had been written out by the stenographer and you had read it?"

"Yes."

Solicitor Dorsey enumerated several of the changes, all of which the witness admitted except as to a change regarding the time when Mrs. White came out of the factory. Attorney Arnold took the statement from the solicitor, looked it over, and asked the witness how he came to go to the solicitor's office.

"I got a subpoena," answered the witness.

Solicitor Dorsey interrupted. "Oh, we'll admit that we sent him a subpoena, if that will please you any."

"It won't please us especially," retorted Mr. Arnold, "except that we just want to know whether that's the sort of practice employed by the solicitor. I would have had just as much right to summon a witness to my office as he had to summon a witness to his office. I never have succeeded in getting any testimony that way myself."

Resuming his examination, Attorney Arnold asked: "You thought you had to obey the subpoena, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"You didn't know that that was a species of false imprisonment, did you?"

"No."

There was laughter in court.

"Did you just make the corrections in the stenographer's manuscript and then leave the office, or did you wait and see that the corrections were made in the affidavit before you signed it?"

"I waited and saw that the corrections were made?"

"Who else was there beside Mr. Dorsey?"

"There was a stenographer, and I think Mr. Starnes and Mr. Campbell."

"They were all asking you questions, were they?"

"Yes."

Attorney Arnold glanced over the pages of the affidavit and remarked, "Why, there's twenty-one pages of this. They must have gone over a lot of irrelevant ground. I'm not going to ask you about all this which has no bearing on the case. A lot of it has no bearing, has it?"

"Yes, that's right, to the best of my recollection."

Attorney Arnold read at random some questions and answers which the witness admitted to be correct.

SAW CONLEY READING.

"Do you know Jim Conley?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"Yes."

"Did you ever see him reading papers in the factory after the crime?"

"Yes, I saw him reading a couple of times a few days after the tragedy."

"Have you ever seen spots on the metal room floor before?"

"Yes."

"Did you see the place where they chipped up what they termed to be blood stains?"

"Yes."

Mr. Dorsey questioned the witness again.

"Where was Conley when he was reading these papers?" asked the solicitor.

"He was sitting near the elevator on the fourth floor once, and another time I saw him reading in the rear of the building."

The witness said he didn't know what papers Conley was reading. He said he had talked to Conley about the crime, but did not remember the conversation. Campbell said he knew Conley could write because he saw him writing, once with pen and ink. The solicitor questioned the witness closely about spots on the floor in the metal room. The witness said he had seen them frequently at different places in the room, but could not indicate them exactly. The witness said he had not examined closely the spot where the alleged blood stains were found.

"You told the people all around there saying it was blood, yet you didn't take the trouble to stoop down yourself and look?"

The witness said yes, and his statement precipitated an argument over the admissibility of others saying it was blood. Finally the court admitted it on the ground that it would show the witness' conduct on that morning. Campbell was excused, and the court recessed at 12:30 until 2 o'clock.

Prowling Detectives Routed by Old Bayonet

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Five men who said later that they were seeking "evidence" nearly wrecked the apartment of E. De Saprezi, an art editor, early one morning, thinking they were burglars, stoutly defended himself and wife with an old bayonet.

He wielded the weapon with such telling effect that two of the evidence seekers had to go the hospital. When made prisoners the men explaind that they were detectives and had got into the wrong flat.

TRAMP UNDER WRECKED CAR SLIGHTLY BRUISED

Team Quits Field

LAGRANGE, Ga., Aug. 12.—In the fourth inning of the Monday game between LaGrange and Newnan, Manager Brannen refused to play ball on account of a decision of Umpire Burk which let two runs across the plate for Newnan. Umpire Burk then forfeited the game to Newnan.

the first appeal, which reverses Judge Hammond, is introduced by the following headnote: "Where a motion based on pending libel for divorce is made to the judge under civil code of 1910 for temporary alimony and the custody of children of the marriage pending the litigation, the judge in determining the custody of the children, is not bound by a previous judgment in habeas corpus between the same parties, but after hearing all the facts and circumstances should exercise a sound discretion in awarding the custody of the children."

This ruling means that regardless of the action taken by Judge Hammond on the certiorari he must hold a new hearing and again determine the disposition of the Zachry children.

MONDAY'S HEARING.

The hearing on the South Carolina requisition for Mr. Zachry, was held before the governor Monday afternoon and continued for three hours, the governor reserving his decision until 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in order that he might have opportunity to study the record of the case.

Four separate indictations of South Carolina laws are set out in the requisition for Mr. Zachry, all growing out of the fact that he took his little daughter in his automobile at Columbia and brought her to his home in Harlem.

After reviewing the Zachry case Governor Slaton says in his order:

"The case is a pathetic one. Both mother and father, whatever differences exist betwen them, idolize their children. I am in receipt of a letter, exhibited to counsel from Mrs. Zachry, entreating that I return to her her child. The only interpretation of the letter is that the devotion to the child is the basis of all proceedings.

"But I am not invested with the power to prevent extradition proceedings into an instrumentality for forcing the father to return a child awarded to him by the courts both of Georgia and South Carolina. The law of Georgia prevents me from granting a requisition required for the enforcement of any private purpose.

"The highest courtesy is due and will always be extended by me to the state of South Carolina and its chief executive. It would require a most conclusive conception of duty to decline a properly authenticated request for extradition by him. But in this case, I believe that had the official record been presented to the governor of South Carolina, together with the undisputed evidence, he would have agreed that the distressing conditions were irremediable by the chief executives of the sister states.

"I therefore must decline the request for the custody of Julian J. Zachry.

"Let a copy of this opinion be forwarded to the governor of South Carolina."

WIDESPREAD INTEREST.

The Zachry case has attracted widespread attention in Georgia and South Carolina. Mr. and Mrs. Zachry, after a rather turbulent married life of about four years, separated several months ago, and a few weeks ago the Augusta courts awarded the custody of the two children, aged one and three years, to the father.

As soon as Mrs. Zachry learned of the court's decision, she took her children in an automobile and left Augusta for Columbia, S. C. A day or two later Mr. Zachry and his attorneys went to Columbia and instituted habeas corpus proceedings to obtain possession of the oldest child. The court decided in his favor and it was then that he took the little girl in his automobile and drove with her to the home of his mother in Harlem.

Mrs. Zachry's attorneys had in the meantime given notice of an appeal. They contended that this notice acted as a supersedeas and that Zachry had no legal right to take his child until the case was finally disposed of by the South Carolina supreme court. Warrants were taken for Zachry and Governor Blease issued the requisitions.

At the hearing before Governor Slaton, Zachry was represented by Attorneys Henry C. Cohen and Hamilton Phinley, of Augusta, and Attorney John T. West, of Thomson. The state of South Carolina was represented by Attorney George E. Rembert, of Columbia, and Attorney Clem E. Dunbar, of Augusta.

Mayor J. D. Cleary, of Harlem, testified that on one occasion he had been called to quiet Mrs. Zachry, who was threatening her husband's life. He said he took a gun away from her which contained a pistol.

Bleases Takes Sarcastic Rap At Georgia Governor

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 12.—Governor Blease, when shown a telegram stating that Governor Slaton had refused requisition of Governor Blease for custody of J. Zachry and asked for a statement, said:

"I presume Governor Slaton did what he thought was right, and I am not surprised at this treatment from a governor of Georgia. It is getting to be common. I shall issue reward for Zachry's arrest. Possibly I can catch him some time passing through this state or on this side of the river, and get him yet for what I consider a wilful and malicious violation of our state laws.

"In my letter to Governor Slaton I stated that the attorney general and myself had investigated the matter. If he knows more about the laws of South Carolina than Attorney General Peoples and myself, of course, I have no comment to make, and have no hard feelings toward a man doing what he thinks is his duty, conceding this to him because I suppose that under similar circumstances he would concede the same to me."

Governor Blease later offered a reward of $250 for the arrest of Zachry.

Mrs. Edna Mills Phones Police She Is Prepared for Man Who Threatened

Mrs. Edna E. Mills, who was reported to have left her husband, W. W. Mills, last week on account of some quarrel they had had, telephoned the police Tuesday that she was still in the city, had never left and had no such intention. She refused to giveh re whereabouts and the police were not able to locate her.

Her husband left the city presumably for Charlotte, N. C., wher he believed his wife had gone some time last week, and has not returned.

Mrs. Mills told the police over the phone that she had taken her little daughter and had hidden from her husband because she said he had made a threat to kill her. She intimated that she was prepared should he attempt to make good his threat.

Ethics of Dr. H. F. Harris Bitterly Attacked By Reuben Arnold

Sensational Charge Hurled By Physician in Testimony Given at Afternoon Session

Dr. Westmoreland, Answering Question of Attorney Reuben R. Arnold, Declares He Never Heard of a Chemist Who Had Made Examination by Himself and Then Destroyed the Organs Without Bringing Them Into Court

Three experts took the stand Monday afternoon at the trial of Leo M. Frank to repudiate the conclusions reached by Dr. H. F. Harris to the effect that the condition of the cabbage in the stomach of Mary Phagan showed that she must have died within an hour after eating, and that the distended blood vessels showed that she had suffered violence of some sort immediately prior to her death.

Dr. Thomas H. Hancock and Dr. Willis Westmoreland both declared that Dr. Harris' conclusions were not justified. Dr. Hancock said that no physician in the world could have told from the evidence that Dr. Harris had before him how long the cabbage and bread had been in the little girl's stomach. He exhibited to the jury a number of specimens of cabbage taken from the stomachs of five different people at different periods after it had been eaten to illustrate that very little if anything could be told by an examination of the food.

An attack upon the ethics of Dr. Harris for having made his examination without calling in any other chemist or physician and then having destroyed the stomach, was made by Attorney Arnold. He asked the following question of Dr. Westmoreland:

"Have you ever known a chemist to make an examination of a corpse nine days after death and utterly destroy the organ and not bring it into court to exhibit it to the jury or give it to the other side for investigation and examination?"

Dr. Westmoreland replied in the negative, after Judge Roan had ruled that the question should be allowed.

The sensational statement was made by Dr. Willis Westmoreland that he had preferred charges of "scientific dishonesty" against Dr. H. F. Harris while a member of the state board of health, that the board had found him guilty but refused to discharge him and that he (Westmoreland) thereupon resigned.

Answering a question of Attorney Reuben R. Arnold, Dr. Westmoreland declared that he knew Dr. Harris to be the same man professionally now as when he preferred his charges.

Dr. J. C. Olmstead also testified and characterized Dr. Harris' conclusion as pure guesses.

Joel Hunter, expert accountant, was the last witness introduced by the defense. He testified that it would take a swift man to make up the financial sheet, said to have been prepared by Frank on the afternoon that of the day Mary Phagan was killed, in less than three and one half hours. At the conclusion of his testimony at 5:30, court adjourned until 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Dr. Thomas H. Hancock, head of the Atlanta hospital, was called as the first witness for the defense when court resumed at 9 o'clock shortly afternoon. Dr. Hancock testified regarding a physical examination which he made of Leo M. Frank. He stated that he has twenty-two years' medical experience, and that he has observed probably 14,000 surgical cases. He had read the report of the autopsy testimony made by

Mr. Arnold asked this hypothetical question:

"Say a body was embalmed eight hours after death, one gallon of the fluid of the blood taken out and one gallon of embalming fluid containing 8 per cent formaldehyde put in its place; say nine or ten days after death, the body was exhumed, and a cut one and one-half inches long found back of the ear; no bone is found in the skull, no pressure on the brain; but a little hemorrhage is found under the skull. Could any one tell with what wound produced unconsciousness?"

"No, the skull might have been fractured and yet the patient remain conscious."

"There is no possible way to tell, then, is there?"

"No, any statement to that effect would have been merely a guess."

"Is there any way under those circumstances to tell whether or not the wound was produced before or after death, granted that there was some blood (we don't know how much) which flowed from it?"

"No. It could have flowed for from six or eight to ten hours after death."

"Say it was inflicted before death by a sharp-edged instrument?"

"There would have been considerable blood. That is, there would have been much more blood before death as well afterward. And there would have been more blood from a wound inflicted by a blunt instrument. There was a wound inflicted by a blunt instrument."

"Say nine or ten days after death a visual examination was made of the lungs. Could a person say whether or not the subject died of strangulation?"

The witness said that he knew very little of strangulation cases.

"In strangulation cases, the blood is forced from the lungs, isn't it?"

"The authorities differ," said Dr. Hancock. "Usually the right side of the heart fills up and the left empties."

NOBODY COULD TELL.

"Suppose you remove a stomach and make an examination of its contents. Suppose you find wheat bread and cabbage and 32 degrees of acidity. Suppose on taking out the cabbage you found some to be particles like that (holding up the sample taken from Mary Phagan's stomach). Suppose you find very little fruid or solid in the small intestines. Suppose you have no more data than that to go on. Could you give a reliable opinion as to how long that food had been in there if the dog died the body up nine days later and formaldehyde had been used in the embalming?"

"Nobody could."

Attorney Arnold again held up the cabbage taken from Mary Phagan's stomach and asked: "Doctor, lumps like this—what influence have they on digestion?"

"They retard it."

"How is cabbage in a normal stomach usually?"

"Three or four hours."

"Is it possible for it to stay in there longer?"

"Yes."

"Looking at that cabbage, could you undertake to say how long it had been in the stomach?"

"I could not."

"What things retard digestion?"

"Excitement, anger and grief and emotions like that."

"What about exercise?"

"That is a very vague and uncertain subject. Authorities disagree on its effect."

"Do you think that by any chemical analysis, doctor, you could give a dependable opinion as to how long that cabbage had been in her stomach?"

"I could not."

"Is cabbage hard or easy to digest?"

"Very hard."

"Have you made any tests on men, at your request, dealing with cabbage and wheat bread, in the last few days?"

EXHIBITS SPECIMENS.

"One man and four women." Dr. Hancock then took from a grip which he carried to the stand with him five glass jars containing specimens of results obtained by the experiments.

The bottles were set on a table in front of the jury, and Dr. Hancock resumed the witness chair, using a note book to help him with the answers.

"Consider Jar No. 1," said Attorney Arnold. "Tell us about that."

Referring to his note book, Dr. Hancock said he had given portions of cabbage and wheat bread to a white woman thirty-two years old at 12:05 o'clock on August 8, and had let it remain in her stomach sixty minutes, after which he induced vomiting and got it up again. It was well masticated. Dr. Hancock said, the woman having taken nine minutes to chew it.

"What is the cause of the reddish tinge of the contents, doctor?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"The young woman was supposed to have had a chocolate to eat after 6:30 o'clock that morning. I found though, after she had vomited the cabbage and bread, that she had that morning she had taken a chocolate milk."

"And that chocolate milk had remained in her stomach between, if not, three hours and thirty-five minutes?"

"I have only her word for the time she drank it."

RESULTS OF EXPERIMENTS.

"But even chocolate milk, a liquid in form, remained in her stomach that length of time?"

"Evidently."

Sample No. 2, according to Dr. Hancock, consisted of cabbage and bread fed to a normal woman at 12:05 o'clock. It was not chewed well and stayed in the stomach from 45 to 50 minutes. The sample exhibited to the jury showed the cabbage looking very much like it probably did when it went into the patient's stomach.

Sample No. 4, said Dr. Hancock, consisted of cabbage fed to a man twenty-five years old. It was not well chewed, and stayed in the stomach an hour and 15 to 20 minutes. As exhibited to the jury, large particles of the cabbage seemed to have remained unchanged.

Sample No. 3, according to Dr. Hancock, was fed to a woman twenty-one years old, was cabbage and bread fed to a normal woman at 12:05 o'clock. It was not chewed well and stayed in the stomach from 45 to 50 minutes. The sample exhibited to the jury showed particles of what looked like tomato. Dr. Hancock explained that the patient said she had eaten some tomato for breakfast at 6:30 that morning, this indicating, said he, that patricles of the tomato remained unchanged after remaining in the stomach some six hours.

The fifth and final sample consisted of cabbage and bread with butter on it, fed to a woman 25 years of age, at 8:25 o'clock Monday morning. It was taken from the stomach at 12:28, said Dr. Hancock. This sample was not chewed well, said Dr. Hancock. As exhibited to the jury, the sample showed particles of cabbage practically unchanged. Dr. Hancock stated that an hour later the patient gave up some cabbage which showed little if any greater change, although this latter sample was not exhibited to the jury.

Dr. Hancock stated that all of these samples were taken from the stomachs of the patients by vomiting induced by the drinking of warm salt water. He said a stomach pump had not been used because he wanted to obtain samples of the cabbage and bread as nearly as possible in the condition in which they left the stomach.

Stating the circumstances of the examination of Mary Phagan's body, Mr. Arnold asked this question:

"From such an examination as that, could any physician give any safe or dependable opinion as to how long the cabbage and bread remained in the stomach?"

NO PHYSICIAN COULD TELL.

"No physician in the world could tell. I doubt if any physician in the world could tell from examining such specimens here, how long they had been in the stomach."

NO BASIS FOR OPINION.

Dr. Hancock testified that the conditions described by Dr. Harris on which he based his opinion that Mary Phagan had suffered violence would not be sufficient to warrant an opinion. He said distended blood vessels might have resulted from varying causes.

"Even if you should believe there had been violence, could you possibly tell from the conditions I have enumerated how long before death the violence was inflicted?"

"No man could."

"Would you consider five or ten minutes a guess, then?"

"I wouldn't like to express my opinion of that estimate."

"You mean, I suppose, that you try to express yourself always in parliamentary language?"

Dr. Hancock nodded and smiled.

"It wouldn't be much violence, would it, that was known only by a microscope?"

"I should say not."

"Can an eye be blackened by a blow delivered after death?"

"Yes, if delivered during several hours immediately following death."

DORSEY TAKES WITNESS.

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined the witness.

"You are a surgeon of the Georgia Railway & Power Co., are you not?"

"I am."

"You are familiar with the American Medical Journal, are you not?"

There was objection to the question, but it was allowed.

The witness answered affirmatively. He was asked if it was regarded as a standard.

"I would not say that it is," answered Dr. Hancock.

*"You say you graduated from Co*lumbia, doctor. Do you know anything about Dr. A. A. Brill, one of the professors there?"

Dr. Hancock answered in the negative.

NOT AN EXPERT.

Solicitor Dorsey demanded if the witness did not know that a normal man and an abnormal man do not differ necessarily in physique. The witness said that he had had no experience along that line.

"Then your examination of Frank as an expert amounts to nothing?"

"I didn't say I was an expert in that line."

"Well, are you an expert on the stomach?"

The witness declared that he was not an expert, but that he knew enough to make the statements which he had just completed.

"What did you say is the principal element of wheat bread?"

"I didn't say," said the witness.

"Well, won't you say now?" smiled Mr. Dorsey.

"I will not."

"Come down, doctor," said the solicitor.

Mr. Arnold called the witness back to the stand and asked some further questions. Before the witness left the stand, Solicitor Dorsey inquired:

"Doctor, are you familiar with the word 'amidulin?'"

"I don't know what it means," said the witness.

"Well, is there such a word?"

"Yes."

"Do you know anything about the works of Hamilton?" asked the solicitor.

"No."

"Come down," said the solicitor.

DR. WESTMORELAND TESTIFIES.

Dr. Willis Westmoreland was called to the stand by the defense as its next witness. He stated that he is president of the (new) Atlanta Medical college. Since 1897 he has occupied the chair of surgery in the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons. Also, said he, he was the first president of the Georgia state board of health.

"Have you read the stenographic report of Dr. Harris' testimony on the first day?"

"Yes."

Mr. Arnold put the usual hypothetical question, basing the blood behind Mary Phagan's ear, and Dr. Westmoreland replied that the blow rendered her unconscious was entirely a surmise.

Mr. Arnold then put to a physician with no more facts than those described, before him, could give a scientific opinion on the subject. Dr. Westmoreland replied in the negative. In answer to another question, he said there was nothing to show whether the blow was inflicted before or after death. He declared that it could have happened either way, provided the blow was inflicted before the blood coagulated.

Attorney Arnold asked about the same hypothetical questions of Dr. Westmoreland that he had asked of the preceding two witnesses, and obtained virtually the same answers.

Dr. Westmoreland termed Dr. Harris' conclusion about the length of time the cabbage had been in the stomachs before she was killed, as "as wild guessing as I ever heard." There are a number of things that retard digestion, said he, and that the digestion of food is one of the most variable subjects that students of medicine have to deal with.

"Have you ever known a chemist to make an examination of the stomach of a corpse nine days after death, and utterly destroy the organ and not bring it into court to exhibit it to the jury or give it to the other side for investigation and examination?"

"No."

There was objection to this question by Solicitor Dorsey, and Attorney Arnold made a statement of considerable length to the court, in which he said, "Here is a chemist (referring to Dr. Harris as an alleged chemist), who takes Mary Phagan's stomach, this little girl, and other organs, and goes into his own back room and makes an analysis, Are we to take the word of this man's say-so, and not be able to show that we never had an opportunity to make any kind of examination at all?"

"Do you want to show the ethics of the profession?" asked Judge Roan.

"Yes, I want to show the ethics and the rules."

Judge Roan then allowed the question.

In answer to another question along the same line, Dr. Westmoreland said that the usual custom is to keep a portion of organs examined for further investigation if necessary.

Dr. Westmoreland asserted that from evidence at hand it would have been impossible to tell whether Mary Phagan had suffered violence. He said the distended blood vessels would not necessarily have been caused by external violence.

Attorney Arnold asked the witness if from a visual or microscopical examination a physician could advance an opinion as to whether violence had been done from 5 to 15 minutes before death. Dr. Westmoreland replied, "No."

"In all your experience, Dr. Westmoreland, have you ever heard such an opinion expressed before?"

A RASH CONCLUSION.

Dr. Westmoreland replied, "It is one of the rashest conclusions I have ever heard."

"There is no time piece in the human body that can determine it within that accuracy, is there?"

"There is not."

"Did you, at our request on yesterday examine Leo M. Frank?"

"I did."

"Did he appear to be a normal male human being?"

"Perfectly so, yes sir."

Solicitor Dorsey took up the cross-examination of the witness.

"Do you make any stomach analyses, Dr. Westmoreland?"

"No, I have it done by a laboratory."

"It's true, isn't it, doctor, that normal and abnormal men are physically the same?"

"Yes, except in some pronounced cases."

"If a corpse is struck a blow on the eye with a fist, what is the effect?"

"Discoloration."

"Then it's not true that it leaves no sign?"

"No."

"If you have a subject who has been struck a blow on the head, whose skull is not fractured, whose brain is not injured, whose face is livid, whose tongue is out, whose eyes are distended, whose nails and lips are blue—what would you say under those conditions was the cause of death?"

"Answering that strictly as a hypo*thetical question, I should say* the cause of death was strangulation."

A BLOW ON THE HEAD.

"Suppose there was a blow on the head after death. What would you say as to it?"

"I should say it was a blow on the head."

"You couldn't say whether the blow was delivered before or after death?"

"No, I hardly think so."

"Would a blow on the eye after death produce swelling and discoloration?"

"Yes, it probably would if inflicted within two hours."

"Could a blow on the back of the head after death cause bleeding?"

"If strangulation was the cause of death, it probably would produce more bleeding than if it had been delivered before death."

"If there was no violence by a digital examination, if dilation of the blood vessels was found, would you say that violence caused these conditions?"

Dr. Westmoreland said that a seizure might have caused the conditions described.

"Assuming that no violence was done by the digital examination, then in that event you would look for other violence as the cause of these conditions, would you not?"

On this point Dr. Westmoreland was reluctant to commit himself. When Solicitor Dorsey insisted, Attorney Rosser objected.

When pressed for an answer, Dr. Westmoreland said he probably would first look into the doctor's statement.

"Isn't it entirely possible for an examination to be made without dilating the blood vessels and so forth?"

"Yes, it is possible."

"Assuming then that the examination did not produce these conditions, then you must look for other causes, must you not?"

"Yes."

A DELUSIVE SUBJECT.

Solicitor Dorsey examined the witness upon the subject of digestion, which Dr. Westmoreland declared is "the most delusive subject in medicine." To not a single question that the solicitor asked him on this subject would the witness give a definite answer. He declared that medical authorities nearly all disagree on the topic of digestion. They have no more than rough estimates on it.

"Assuming that it takes a perfectly normal healthy man four hours to digest cabbage, tell how long—"

The witness interrupted: "Why, I've had men shot and operated on them hours after they'd eaten it, and found cabbage in their stomachs."

The solicitor asked Dr. Westmoreland about test meals. The witness declared that none of the deductions found in tables are exactly correct. He admitted that at the most authorities on the digestion of cabbage requires four hours, but said that some authorities put the time at five hours, and that all tables on the subject are rough estimates and not scientific facts.

"You know how long it takes free hydrochloric acid to form after a meal, don't you?" asked the solicitor.

"No, I don't," said Dr. Westmoreland.

"Why, doctor, don't you know that it takes thirty minutes as a rule?"

"Well, that is more or less of a guess," said the witness, "though it is generally assumed. Hydrochloric acid is formed on the ascending and descending scale."

"When does it start to descend?"

"That depends on many things." The witness enumerated a number.

"Say 32 degrees of hydrochloric acid was found with cabbage and starch, now would you say that that food had been in the stomach?"

"Any test for hydrochloric acid is only approximate," said Dr. Westmoreland.

DR. HARRIS BRINGING FOR HARRIS.

"What is your personal feeling toward Dr. H. F. Harris? Is it kindly or not?"

"I have none, kindly or otherwise," said Dr. Westmoreland.

"Dr. Harris was on the state board of health with you, was he not?"

"Yes."

"Are you on that board now?"

"No."

"How long has Dr. Harris been there?"

"About six years."

"Dr. Harris was also associated with you at the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons, was he not?"

"Yes."

"What was his position there?"

"Professor of pathology."

"That had a good deal to do with the chemical analysis of stomachs, didn't it?"

"No, but he did a lot of that work."

Dr. Westmoreland asked the witness some further questions on redirect examination.

"What trouble did you have with Dr. Harris?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"When I was president of the state board of health, I preferred charges of scientific dishonesty against him. The board found him guilty and when it would not discharge him I resigned."

"Do you think he is the same man professionally now as then?"

"I know he is."

"Whatever trouble or row you had with Dr. Harris has not influenced your testimony here, has it, doctor?"

"I never had a row with Dr. Harris," Dr. Westmoreland replied. The episode, said he, had not influenced his testimony.

Dr. Westmoreland said the signs of violence found by Dr. Dorsey could not have been produced by accident.

"Do you think there could be injury to the scalp, a wound which one doctor says is an inch and a half long and another doctor says is two inches and a quarter long, be inflicted before death and not produce some kind of a hemorrhage?"

"The scalp bleeds freely."

PUTS HYPOTHETICAL QUESTION.

Attorney Arnold put a hypothetical question to the witness.

"Suppose a girl's head strikes a machine, here," designating a spot in front *of the witness chair, "and she is car*ried over to a spot over there, and there laid down, and then picked up and carried a certain distance, and then dropped. would you expect to find blood on the last place?"

"I should think it would be found in all three places."

Solicitor Dorsey questioned the witness again.

"Well, this blood could be washed up while fresh with water, could it not, doctor?" asked the solicitor.

"Blood stains are hard to wash up."

The solicitor asked the doctor if the blood were in sawdust or cinders or like substance the traces of the blood could be scraped away. Dr. Westmoreland answered yes.

Solicitor Dorsey asked, "How many doctors were there on the state board, Dr. Westmoreland, when you and Dr. Harris were there?"

"There were 12, including the secretary."

Dr. John C. Olmstead was called to the stand as the next witness for the defense. Dr. Olmstead testified that he had been practicing medicine in Atlanta for 36 years. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia, he said, and afterward studied in New York.

"Did you read over the transcript of evidence by Dr. Harris that I gave you?"

"I did."

IMPOSSIBLE TO TELL.

Attorney Arnold put the hypothetical question as to whether or not it could be determined from the wound on the girl's head that she had been knocked unconscious by it. Dr. Olmstead said that it was absolutely impossible to tell.

"If a doctor advanced this opinion," asked Attorney Arnold, "would you say it was a scientific conclusion or a wild guess?"

Dr. Olmstead went over the same ground as the witnesses just receding him, under the same hypothetical questions by Attorney Arnold. He testified that he knows of no medical book in the English language that gives a stomach analysis as having any bearing whatever on the time of death. He said that the fact that Dr. Harris found ferments in the small intestine was not extraordinary in view of the fact that formaldehyde was used in the embalming fluid, but on the contrary it would have been extraordinary if the ferments had been present that long after embalming. He said that from looking at the cabbage taken from Mary Phagan's stomach he would not undertake to estimate how long it had been in her stomach; that it might have been three twelve hours. In answer to a question as to what he thought of Dr. Harris' supposition as to the time of death, Dr. Olmstead said he thought it was "perfectly absurd." He said that the conditions as enumerated by Dr. Harris were by no means a sign of violence before death. These conditions might have been produced, said he, by strangulation, or by settling of the blood after death.

Dr. Olmstead said that assuming that Dr. Hurt's examination of the corpse did no injury it still would have been impossible to tell within five to fifteen minutes just how long before death a violence was inflicted. He said it would have been extremely difficult to tell by an examination made nine days after death within a few hours after death, much less after an examination made nine or ten days after the body had been embalmed and buried.

Solicitor Dorsey took up the cross-examination of Dr. Olmstead.

The solicitor took the admissions by the witness that it takes four and a half hours to digest cabbage and two and a half hours to digest wheat bread, and upon this formulated the following hypothetical question:

"Say that two normal people have eaten cabbage and bread prepared just alike, that they have swallowed it just alike and that the substance was taken out of their stomachs at different times, couldn't you tell by the one whether the other had been in the stomach a shorter or longer time?"

The experiment would be too delicate for him to attempt, said the witness.

Finally, however, the solicitor held up a number of specimens taken from the stomachs of different people from 50 to 60 minutes after they had eaten cabbage in the same manner that Mary Phagan ate her last meal, and Dr. Olmstead admitted that, known the sample taken from her stomach, it would be presumed naturally that it had remained in the stomach a shorter time than the others.

"Are you a general practitioner or an analytical chemist?"

"As a general practitioner," replied the witness.

The solicitor concluded his examination there, but Mr. Arnold detained the witness for more questioning. Mr. Arnold brought out over the objection of Mr. Dorsey the statement that in the opinion of the witness a general practitioner, on account of his large dealing with patients and his wide observation and with the tables of the analytical chemist to guide him, would be as well qualified if not more so than an analytical chemist to testify on the subject at issue. Mr. Arnold caused the witness to declare once more that a person exhuming a body nine days after death and stating by an examination of the stomach that the girl had eaten from 30 to 40 minutes before death, was making "nothing but a wild guess."

The witness was excused, and the eleventh juror was let for the first time since the trial began.

Joel Hunter, expert accountant, was called by the defense as the next witness.

EXAMINED FINANCE SHEET.

Mr. Hunter qualified as an expert by testifying that he has had some fifteen years' experience as an accountant and is an examiner of the Georgia board of accountants. He entered court with copies of all the papers that Frank is supposed to have made out on Saturday, April 26, and after comparing the originals with the copies he took the witness chair.

He said that he had examined the financial sheet and the other accounts and papers that Frank said he compiled and made out on Saturday, April 26. He said that he had seen Herbert Schiff at the pencil factory and that Schiff had acquainted him with the data necessary for making out the report; and that he had done it without making out a new financial report. He outlined in answer to questions by Attorney Arnold that Frank's financial sheet was correct with the exception of one decimal in the total and three errors, he said, he thought was in copying or setting down the total; rather than in multiplication.

"As an accountant, would you say that the sheet was accurately compiled?"

"I should say so."

Dr. Hunter said that calculations necessary and the least possible time in your opinion, that it would take a person to make out this financial report and balance sheet from the data in person 150 minutes. This is the quickest possible time. This, said he, would not allow for checking up the accounts. He placed a reasonable maximum time at 172 minutes. He went into exhaustive detail with the jury in regard to this subject, reading from a sheet the time which he estimated it would take to make every computation in the complex preparation of the financial sheet. His estimates for various calculations ran from two minutes up to twenty minutes. He concluded his answer by saying that it would take a pretty swift man to do the work in less than three and a half hours.

Mr. Hunter was cross-examined by Attorney Hooper.

"As an original proposition, in making up this sheet, this data would all be furnished to you?"

"As to that, I cannot say."

"One's familiarity with the figures would enable one naturally to do the work quicker, wouldn't it?"

"Yes, I should say so."

"Then with Mr. Frank's necessary familiarity he ought to be able to make up this sheet in less time than you made it up?"

"I shouldn't say his 'necessary' familiarity. I should say his probable familiarity."

"A great many of the items you had to do were at his fingers' ends, weren't they?"

"I assume so."

"You say, then, that it would take from three to three and a half hours to make up this sheet?"

"Yes, that is my best estimate, although I would say that it might take longer than that for the reason that the financial sheet is not subject to internal proof."

"Do you mean to say that Frank proved each one of the sheets?"

"No, I don't say that because I don't know. But I should say that a comparison of the sheet with the other sheets would afford valuable information which a good business manager would be glad to have."

"You make a very small calculation, don't you, for his familiarity with the business?"

"No, I have allowed for that."

"In some places, you have allowed grains for yourself over him, haven't you?"

"No, I have tried to determine how long it would take a practical man. I think 150 minutes to be the shortest possible time."

"Then you think that a man who could do it quicker than you did it would be a wonderful man, do you?"

"No, I simply mean that 150 minutes is my opinion of the shortest time in which it could be done."

Mr. Hunter was excused from the stand and court adjourned, at 5:35, until 9 o'clock Tuesday.

HOUSE QUIBBLES WHILE IMPORTANT BILLS WAIT

Discuss Calves and Suckers and Stop to Pass "Blue Sky" and W. & A. Bills

After wrangling for several hours over how suckers, a certain kind of fish, should be caught, and whether or not yearling calves should be slain under two years of age, while important legislation hung in the balance, the house finally got down to business within a few minutes of adjournment Monday afternoon and passed two measures of state-wide importance. One was the "blue sky" law of Messrs. Wohlwender, of Muscogee, and Spence, of Carroll, aimed at "wild-cat" schemes and the "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingfords," and the other the bill of Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd, for the appointment of a commission to make party for the future disposition of the Western and Atlantic railroad and report back at the next session of the general assembly.

In order to be able to put the all-important bill of Mr. Wright on its final passage that it might reach the senate in time for consideration, it was necessary to extend the session of the house after six o'clock. This bill provides for a commission of seven, three to be appointed by the speaker of the house, two by the president of the senate and two to be named by the governor, with the governor and chairman of the railroad commission as ex-officio members. This commission has the power to make a thorough investigation of the status of the affairs of the state's property and it will investigate the value of the road and all legal questions involved in the matter of releasing or extending the property to the sea.

The measure carries an appropriation of $5,000 for the expenses of the commission. Mr. Wright made an able speech in behalf of the bill, explaining its features and the intents of its provisions. It was passed by a vote of 93 to 28.

The "blue sky" bill as passed by the house will make it extremely difficult for "wild-cat" schemes to met with material success in the state. Dealers in stocks, bonds, securities, debentures, etc., must first register them for sale with the comptroller general before putting them on the market. Everything of this nature must be shown to be bonafide before the proper license is granted.

Senate Bills

The following bills were passed by the senate Tuesday:

By Mr. Taylor of Washington—To incorporate the Davisboro school district.

By Mr. Neal of Gordon—To amend an act creating a board of commissioners of roads and revenues for Gordon county.

By Mr. James of Gilmer—To amend the act incorporating the town of East Ellijay.

By Mr. Methvin of Dodge—To amend an act creating a commisioner of roads and revenues for Dooge county.

By Mr. Collins of Grady—To incorporate the town of Reno.

By Mr. Herrington of Emanuel—To incorporate the town of Wesley.

By Mr. Clements of Irwin—To repeal an act incorporating the city of Ozierfield.

By Mr. Wood of Emanuel—To amend act incorporating the city of Swainsboro.

Mr. Berry of Whitfield—To amend an act incorporating the city of Dalton.

By Mr. Driver of Franklin—To amend an act creating a board of commissioners of roads and revenues for Franklin county.

By Mr. Myrick of Chatham—To repeal an act to assist the Georgia infirmary.

By Mr. McCrary of Telfair—To establish a system of public schools in the town of Scotland.

By Mr. Miller of Bibb—To abolish justice of the peace courts in the city of Macon.

By Messrs. Miller and Wimberly of Bibb—To amend an act creating a new charter for the city of Macon.

By Mr. Thompson of Madison—To provide for holding four terms of superior court in Madison county.

By Mr. McGregor—To repeal an act regulating the manner in which the state militia may be called out.

Advice to Those Who Have Lung Trouble

Pulmonary Lung Trouble is said to be curable by simply living in the open air and taking an abundance of fresh eggs and milk. Do all you possibly can to add to strength and increase weight; eat wholesome, nourishing food, and breathe the cleanest and purest air, and then, if health and strength do not return, add the tonic and beneficial effects of Eckman's Alterative. Read what it did in this case:

Wilmington, Del.

"Gentlemen: In January, 1908, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs. I took cases and milk in quantities, but I got very weak. Mr. C. A. Lippincott, my employer (Lippincott & Co., Department Store, 306 to 314 Market street, Wilmington, Del.), recommended to me Eckman's Alterative, and upon his suggestion I began taking it at once. This was about June, 1908. I continued faithfully, using no other remedy, and finally noticed the clearing of the lungs. I firmly believe Eckman's Alterative saved my life."

Woodward's New Hat Interests City Hall

Mayor Woodward has a new hat—a brand new hat and a nifty hat. It is as flat as a pancake, and has a stylish little bow at the back. The brim is rather wide, and the whole effect is quite up-to-date.

The mayor blossomed out in his new headgear Monday, and immediately became observed of all eyes. Somebody remarked that maybe the mayor bought a pancake hat because Alderan Nutting had one with a broad brim and a low crown, but the commentator took care to say it where the mayor couldn't hear.

The mayor paid—well, never mind. Anybody that wants to know how much, or how little that hat cost, had best ask the mayor. At any rate the city's chief executive likes his hat, and wears it at a sporting angle on his head.

ATLANTA-MADE EXHIBIT SPACE ALMOST TAKEN UP

Campaign to Sell All Remaining Space Will End on August 19

All the space in the Atlanta manufacturers' exhibit which will be placed in the new chamber of commerce building will be alloted by August 19, one week from now. The space has been going fast during the last few days and if the manufacturers do not act quickly they may find that all the space has been exhausted when they do apply.

The space is being alioted as the applications come in with no favoritism as to positions. Twenty-four manufacturers had signed for space Monday, and a campaign was instituted to sell every foot of space by Tuesday, the 19th. A meeting of the chairmen of the various committees having charge of the campaign will meet each day, beginning Wednesday, in the chamber of commerce building.

The object of the exhibit is to have gathered in one place the different products of Atlanta manufacturers so that visitors may know what Atlanta is doing along that line.

It also has a great advertising value for in this way prospective buyers can choose what they like, and get in communication with the manufacturers.

The exhibition will have a competent man in charge who will furnish visitors any information they may desire concerning the manufacturers or their goods.

The exhibit itself will be advertised in hotels, railway stations and other public places in towns tributary to Atlanta.

Contracts for space had been signed by the following firms up to Tuesday:

Southern Engraving company, Frederick Disinfecting company, J. K. Orr Shoe company, E. Van Winkle Motor Truck company, Atlanta Gas Light company, Southern Upholstering company, Atlanta Stove works, Southern Spring Bed company, Burnett, Bell & Klapper, Gholstin-Cunningham company, All Star Manufacturing company, Byrd Printing company, Norris, Inc., Willingham-Tift Lumber company, Tripod Paint compang, J. P. Stevns Engraving company, Atlanta Paper company, Atlanta Blank Book Manufacturing company, White Provision company, Dowman-Dozier, Foote & Davies.

The following contracted for space at the meeting held Monday:

Nunnally & McCrea, Marcus Loeb & Co., Whittier Mills company.

Your Town's Regeneration

DID you ever think that city officials can materially lower the death-rate of their towns if they would do it?

Serious thought, that.

We want to talk to the officials of towns or cities that need better sanitation.

So long as disease has a wide-open chance at your town, neither you nor your neighbor is safe. And if you can prevent it, you are criminally negligent not to try.

The sewerage system of your town—is it correct? How about it?

Is the water supply pure? How about the chances for a summer's run of fever that may sweep right through your population?

Somebody says it is wiser to spend time arousing town officials to do their duty than to spend it comforting the bereaved mothers whose little children are taken from them because of insanitary conditions in the town.

We think so, too. That's why we are talking to you after this fashion.

Our specialty is the designing and installing of correct systems of sanitation for towns and cities.

We also feature lighting and paving plans.

We do the whole thing, planning, estimating, financing; constructing, operating. That is, if you want all that done; or we do any part of the work.

We are Municipal Engineers with a record of more than 400 contracts carried out successfully and without a break.

The Crisis

Unless the Legislature makes workmanly use of its three remaining days and provides some means for bringing the State's income up to its vital necessities, the rights and interests of the people will suffer beyond reckoning.

Our public school teachers are unpaid and, as matters now stand, they have no hope of relief from the heavy injustice they have borne so long.

Our public institutions are stinted and under the existing tax system even the bare necessaries of their subsistence must soon be cut off.

Enterprises that concern the health, the social welfare and the very life of the people are being sacrificed to a crude fiscal system.

What is the Legislature going to do? Will it solve this problem in a spirit of businesslike patriotism or through failure to act let the present dangerous drift continue?

John Lind in Mexico.

None of the troubles or dangers which our would-be war-makers foreshadowed for the arrival of John Lind in Mexico has come to pass. The special envoy landed at Vera Cruz as peacefully as ever a village deacon stepped from his "one-hoss shay;" he made the day's journey to the capital with no more excitement than a street car would encounter on its bedtime trip to the barn; without incident, he passed from the station to his hotel where he slept soundly and arose betimes; he took a leisurely stroll in an adjoining park and then proceeded without ado to the American embassy to talk business. Indeed, the only embarrassment or discomfort the envoy has thus far experienced came from the fact that in his hurried departure, he neglected to provide himself with an overcoat for the chill uplands of Mexico. Yet, there were garrulous patriots who predicted that Mr. Lind would be flung out of the fiery country the moment he set foot upon its soil or, perhaps, suffer a worse fate still.

But the alarmists are being belied all the way around. Whether Mr. Lind's mission, as special representative of the President, specifically succeeds or fails, it will certainly not make the Mexican situation more complex, if we may judge from the present drift of events. Indeed, conditions have become distinctly more reassuring within the past eight and forty hours. Huerta's blustering declaration that he would deal with no representative from the United States who was not commissioned to recognize the provisional government has blown over without consequence. The President's envoy is informing himself accurately concerning the real status of affairs and within a few days he will doubtless be prepared to make certain definite recommendations.

In the meantime, it is cheering to note that the Senate leaders, regardless of party alignment, are determined to keep Mexican affairs out of debate. That is a wise and helpful course to pursue. The administration is handling this problem in the only way it should be handled, with coolness and foresight. If a peaceful solution is possible, it should be given every chance to work itself out. There is no excuse nor should there be any tolerance for these organized and really sinister efforts, which are being made, to thrust the nation into war.

If Wilson were a candidate tomorrow, he'd get a better vote than all his critics.

Prospects of the Currency Bill.

There are distinctly favorable omens for the banking and currency bill as it goes to the Democratic caucus of the House. President Wilson is said to feel more confident than ever that the measure will pass at this session of Congress, his hope being predicated not alone on the friendlier attitude of bankers the country over but also on the steady reconciliation of divergent views among the majority both in the Senate and House. To these cheering evidences, must be added that of the less tangible but equally telling force of public opinion. The average business judgment is unmistakably in favor of prompt action on banking and currency problems; and the President, with his genius for focusing the light and heat of public opion on vital issues, is making it a definite influence.

The coolness or opposition which financiers showed to the bill in its original form has greatly moderated; indeed, so far as the rank and file of bankers are concerned, it has apparently changed to hearty approbation, so that downright hostility to the measure in its preent shape seems limited to special interests in one or two great financial centers. From the most conservative quarters, we now hear words of praise and even earnest appeals that the bill be passed; as one observer remarks, "It has even won some tolerant words from the New York Sun; it has practically disarmed the early and violent opposition of the New York Times; it is pronounced by as good a financial authority as the New York Evening Post to be superior to the Aldrich bill; and it brings from the New York Commercial a demand for its immediate passage by Congress in the interest of settled business conditions." And all this has come about without the sacrifice of any essential priciple in the bill as first put forward.

The measure as finally reported from the House committee preserves the important feature of government control, though it gives the banks a liberal advisory influence in the conduct of the new system proposed. This latter provision is eminently practical and eminently fair. It strengthens the original bill and the fact that it has the administration's approval is assurance enough that it will not in the least impair the public service of the revised system.

Eleven of the fourteen members of the House committee on banking and currency approve the bill in its present form. The three dissentients are holding out for additional changes which within themselves are perhaps commendable but which involve matters of detail rather than principle and which are very unseasonably proposed. The most that can be expected now is the passage of a bill that will remedy the general defects of the existing system. An ideal measure cannot be hoped for. But if a fairly satisfactory law is enacted and put into effect, it will be easy to improve it from time to time through such amendments as experience may show to be advisable.

This is evidently the view shared by the majority of the House Democrats, and so it is considered a certainty that the bill will meet the approval of the caucus and will pass. In that event, its chances in the Senate will be greatly strengthened. Administration leaders predict, indeed, that at the decisive hour the Democrats of the Senate will be found as effectively loyal to banking and currency reform as they have been to tariff reform.

Fortunes in Trifles.

This is conspicuously an age of turning humble opportunities to royal account. What the world once discarded as useless, it now converts into fortunes. The by-products of today are worth incomparably more than the chief industrial output was a few decades ago. Never were there so many different kinds of ways to make a living, ways so odd and seemingly trivial, yet withal so sufficient to him of ready wit and willing hands.

Here, for instance, is a Canadian who hits upon the happy idea of catching foxes for a living. Hundreds of his neighbors, no doubt, realized that fox fur has its place in the earth's commerce but this particular individual decides that the possibilities of the fox are but crudely developed; and, so, he begins to specialize upon that crafty animal. He establishes a fox range where his faith and energy are, in time, rewarded with thousands of fox families, and today, the story goes, he is becoming a millionaire.

Those "learned and authentic fellows," the statisticians, have calculated that if all the broken bottles and tin cans in the country were collected they would constitute a fortune beside which the holdings of our greatest magnate would be but a doit. Some day perhaps a man with the genius for discerning the importance of simple things will win wealth and fame by turning sparrows to profit; another may show how all our carpet sweepings can be gathered up each morning and used as fuel for driving the town's machinery. Certain it is that utterly useless things are becoming very rare.

Federation of Catholic Societies

By Frederic J. Haskin

The annual convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, now in session in Milwaukee, is attended by delegates representing at least 3,000,000 Catholics. This federation is a national body which is composed of branch federations in each of the states. The state federations are all working in the same direction as the national body and the convention will tend to spread over the entire country the benefits of each new activity undertaken in the states. The Catholic federation has been officially approved by his holiness the pope, and includes organizations of both the church and the laity.

• • •

A great civic meeting, a feature of the convention, will be opened by Hon. Thomas B. Minnehan, of St. Paul, who will deliver an address upon "The Catholic American Citizen." The federation includes hundreds of the organizations existing for various purposes under the authority of the church. No sodalities or devotional societies are included, but only such as are regarded as social in their scope. The Knights of Columbus, the Knights of St. John, the Holy Name society, the Catholic Total Abstinence society, the numerous charitable clubs and institutions which flourish in Catholic localities, are all included in the federations of the different states or in the national organization.

• • •

The Knights of St. John are entitled to the credit of originating the idea of federating the Catholic organizations. At a meeting of the Knights of St. John held in Cleveland in 1899 the movement for the concerted action of Catholic laymen was first discussed. After several preliminary meetings the first convention for a national body was held in Cincinnati in 1901 at which 250 organizations were represented. Since then the federation has grown in strength and influence and has already been able to accomplish much good. It does not disturb the purposes or methods of any society, but seeks to unite all for co-operation and economy of forces. It disclaims all right to be regarded as a political organization and does not aspire to any special favors or privileges for Catholics, but is at all times on the alert to protect them from injustice.

• • •

The first avowed principle of the American Federation of Catholic Societies is the Christian education of the youth of this nation. The second is "The correction of error and the exposure of falsehood and injustice, the destruction of bigotry and the placing of Catholics and the church in their true light, thus removing the obstacles which have hitherto impeded progress." The third is "The infusion of Christian principles into the public and social life of the country by continually combating the errors which threaten to undermine the foundations of civil society, notably socialism, divorce, dishonesty in business and corruption in politics and in positions of public trust."

• • •

Because of the increasing recognition being given to the work of organized Catholic women in their numerous activities, a special council for the ladies will be a feature of this convention. Catholic women are interested in every reform movement. At the Washington federation meeting, recently held in Seattle, a social reform session was led by Dr. Mary O'Brian Porter, of Chicago, who presented the white slave subject and urged that the federated Catholics take some steps to prevent the destruction of the 1,700 young girls who are said to disappear each year between New York and Chicago. The largest Catholic women's organization is the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association which now claims a membership of 1,500,000. The treasurer's report, given at the annual meeting of this organization held at Jersey City last month, gave the sum of $142,000,000 as having been raised and dispensed by this body of women devoted to religious and benevolent purposes since its organization.

• • •

One of the works of the federation is in the aid of Catholics living in regions remote from church privileges. In some of the western states Catholic churches are many miles apart. An organization known as the Society of Mother's Assistants has recently been formed, through the aid of a state federation, which has for its purpose the education by correspondence of Catholic children who are out of the reach of churches and schools. Generous contributions have been made for the purpose of supplying Catholic literature and periodicals to Catholic families so situated. Devoted Catholic women are keeping close correspondence with children who in this way are brought to the knowledge of the Catholic religion. A little girl living ninety miles from a Catholic church recently wrote a letter expressing her gratitude for the aid thus received which had been instrumental in giving religious instruction to seventeen persons of Catholic parentage who otherwise would have had none.

• • •

A feature of this convention work will be a protest against certain scurrilous publications being permitted to pass through the United States mails. A new publication has lately been issued in New York, published in the Italian language, which has been cited as especially worthy of attention on the ground of indecency and immorality. Other publications objected to are those which print absolutely false statements concerning the Catholic church and its clergy. The Holy Name society, of New Jersey, is the organization which is especially forwarding this work.

• • •

One of the greatest works undertaken by the federation as a whole is the effort to unite in friendly understanding the Catholics of different nationalities and to harmonize their differences. In many cities Catholic churches are attended by persons of half a dozen nationalities each of which is dominated by strong racial prejudices. It is the mission of the Catholic faith to break down racial barriers in a common bond which will turn all into good American citizens. Settlement work under the direction of the priests can help to bring this about. In Chicago work of this kind in a community of Poles, Bohemians and Italians has met with gratifying success. Because of the large number of immigrants coming into this country from Catholic countries, the importance of guarding their faith in new and difficult surroundings is recognized by Catholic laymen. A great movement for the social and religious good of the immigrant is being fostered by the federation.

• • •

Among the matters pertaining to the general good to be considered at Milwaukee is the Catholic theater movement, looking toward a more rigid censorship of the plays being presented in the moving picture shows which are recognized as likely to become the theater of the future. The New York federation has been active in this work during the past year and is fostering a movement which will be influential in prohibiting pictures which are irreverent, as well as those which are obscene or immoral. Among the plays recently criticised is a version of Victor Hugo's novel "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which it is claimed places the Catholic church in a false light. This play was suppressed in a Maine town last month through the influence of Catholic societies.

Wilson's Leadership in Legislation

(New York Evening Post.)

It is well to stand off a moment and see what has been happening. In the midst of momentous changes and events, we become habituated to them and lose a due sense of their significance. We may have lived, with the poet, in a perfect star, yet seen it not when we walked therein. But it is certain that any intelligent and detached observer of American affairs—Mr. Bryce, for instance, or Ostrogorski—would consider what has been going on at Washington since April 7 as of capital importance in the history of the development of the president's functions. For he would not fail to see that it is the president who has been the chief driving force behind the two great measures that have been occupying the attention of congress. Both these measures it is now expected will be enacted into law before the extra session expires. If they are, they will, considering their nature and the circumstances under which they were brought to pass*age, constitute an achievement* without a parallel in the annals of the American presidency.

The tariff bill it was comparatively easy to get going. To it the Democratic party was freshly pledged, and the country was ready for the work. But the personal wishes of President Wilson were early stamped upon the bill. It was on his initiative that wool was made free, and sugar ultimately free. This was much to have accomplished, yet the president has done a great deal more by holding his party together successfully, and acting as a kind of dynamo to furnish energy for pushing the bill. But the great wonder is that, along with this bill, by itself enough to fill the mind and exhaust the strength of the ordinary executive, President Wilson should have had the resource and boldness to devise a measure of still more far-reaching importance. Last May the possibility of getting a currency bill through at this session of congress was openly scoffed at by the old congressional hands in Washington. The president was dreaming. The thing was preposterous. But Mr. Wilson steadily kept at it. First, he succeeded in getting the plan tolerated; then it was discussed; then a bill was framed, which was sharply criticised—as it deserved to be—has since been amended and improved until, in its essentials, it has won the approval of the best economic and banking opinion of the country; and now, as crowning miracle, the belief in Washington is veering round to the conviction that the bill will actually be made law before the snow flies. If it really is, the result in heightening the prestige and the authority of the Wilson administration will bulk large before the eyes of all.

There is something impressive in the mere promise of such a remarkable record of work done in Wilson's first six months; but the more deeply interesting thing, after all, is the man behind the work. Nothing is so fascinating in public life as study of a new personality wreaking itself upon old tasks. What are Wilson's methods? Who will tell us the secret of his influence? Outwardly, he has been the least assertive and ostentatious of executives. To his immediate predecessor he offers the sharpest contrast. He has made no speeches. In blustering or bragging he has never indulged, and he has not gone out on the steps of the White House and called any man a liar. Nor has he allowed himself to be pulled hither and thither in good-natured nonresistance. He has stuck closely to his job. No head of a great corporation could have more rigidly kept office hours, or displayed more industry. Yet, somehow, from this business president sitting at his desk, there has come an impulse and a sustained force which have made the legislation that looked impossible two months ago seem today almost within sight.

Such effects come by cause, yet it may not be easy to analyze the cause. The work which President Wilson has done ranks among the skilful politicians, in the high sense of that term, and we are always trying to get at the sources of a politician's power. But we can seldom put the finger on them. Gladstone said that the successful politician was the hardest of all men to understand; he himself had studied many, but was not sure that he had really comprehended more than one or two. It would be folly to attempt as yet anything like a complete account of the ways in which President Wilson works his will. It is evident, however, that he is a firm believer in the light which comes from the striking of mind on mind. He has the historic English conception of taking counsel as a means of arriving, first at wisdom, and then at action. No discussion seems to him properly ended which does not close with the words: "Now, let's to business." And he must also have a fine instinct for the higher strategies of public affairs, knowing when to strike and when to bide his time; and withal a just idea of the value of steady pounding on one idea. Whatever his secret—and we can only guess at it—the fact remains that in the defter yet most unpretentious manner President Wilson has thus far more powerfully shaped more important legislation than any executive of our time.

Brains and Golf

(Chicago Tribune.)

Mr. Marshall Whitlatch unkindly selects golf for an exposition of the hypothesis (in the August Century) that mind is an embarrassment to muscles in pastimes requiring the latter; unkindly, inasmuch as golf is the passion or play of intellectuals.

Mr. Whitlatch is ironic with his "very curious discovery" that good golf "is played through the lower nerve centers and motor channels, while poor golf is due to the direct interference of the brain or consciousness." (The Swiss boy inventing the watch.)

Mr. Ring Bodie and Mr. Heine Zimmerman. Mr. Sam Langford, the Tar Baby of Boston; Mr. Sam Mc-Vey, the Parisian cinder; the impossible Johnson, who is a marvel of co-ordination, and other conspicuous persons tedious to name and not worth numbering, could, if they had a little more of what they do not need in their professions, have shown Mr. Whitlatch to a complete exposition of his theme.

When he selects golf for his subject and limits the discussion to that pastime he is deliberately and with cruelty seeking to destroy an element of pleasure in the game with which he has selected as worthy of it, confident that in it perfection is mental.

"That the brains of the country are at work on this problem is amply proved," says Mr. Whitlatch, "by the membership lists of the various country clubs. The handicap lists and scores turned in by these brainy men are further evidence that golf and brains do not assimilate. The scores seem to indicate that there is a direct relation between the amount of brains used and the amount of strokes used in making a round of the course—the more brains, the more strokes."

The processes of the intellectual are reasoning; reasoning produces conscious attention; conscious attention interferes with the free movement of muscles which will respond accurately to habit rather than reason. Hence the more the intellectual devote their minds to the control of their muscles the more they interfere with the education of nerve centers which would control the muscles accurately.

Mr. Whitlatch might have added that the pastime of the intellectual requires less mental effort than that of Mr. Zimmerman or Mr. Langford. Mr. Zimmerman at bat might be embarrassed if he tried to reason out the delivery. If he could be chloroformed so as to leave his muscles free he would hit just as well, but in fielding the ball there are options which require quick decisions involving something at least approximate to thought, and the quickness of the decision must not interfere with the subconscious quickness of muscular action.

Even Mr. Langford, whose feints, blocking, and leads are entirely independent of whatever he has in his cerebrum, has to use his ring generalship to modify his attack to the faults of his enemy.

Possibly the intellectuals will use their mentality in golf against Mr. Whitlatch, but until they present a case good golf play will be accepted as the product of a wholesome state of Nirvana.

MEANING OF THE WOMAN MOVEMENT

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

Very few of those engaged in the movements of modern feminism, or of those opposed realize the depth, the tidal resistlessness, the cosmic character of the force which is, now quietly and now with turbulence, bringing women into even higher prominence in our civilization.

Most of the things advanced women are striving for are straws, but they show the way the wind blows. Getting the vote, in itself, means little; so also mean little the wearing of trousers, the entrance into the professions or into business, or the capture of any of the superficial privileges traditionally enjoyed by men only. But as indications of the gradual feministation of the race these things mean much. In a state of nature and of freedom, where society is not continually prevented from normal growth by wars and threatening wars, as has been the case up to this age and everywhere but in America, woman would be naturally the superior and dominant sex.

Ruskin points out that Shakespeare, and Scott, and Dante, and all the greatest masters of literature have not been mistaken in making the heroine always the stronger spiritually. It is she who is queen and disposer, it is for her the hero fights and labors, his reward and his incentive are in her keeping.

Man is the weaker vessel. Only in imperfectly developed races is the strong man master. As culture and intellectual growth advance the reins of control pass into the woman's hands.

Biologists are now intimating that it is probable that Eve was made first and that Adam is the after product created to assist in the perpetuation of the race.

That women now "look up" to men, and are usually clinging vines and leaning, dependent creatures, idle dolls or indolent playthings, is simply due to the lingering influence of centuries of artificial conditions caused by the universal presence of war.

In time to come the woman and not the man will be the Head of the Family. Hers are the children more than his; she carries them while they are being formed; her body and soul is poured into them.

In marriage the man will take the woman's name. All that he achieves will be frankly recognized as caused by her direction. Property rights will be vested in her, not in him.

She it is that has the divine beauty of face and form, and when the struggle shall have been transferred from fists and clubs to ideas and spirit potencies she will naturally assume leadership.

The farther we evolve from beasthood the nearer we approach to a woman-ruled world.

In all the things that tend to the wealth and soundness of mankind, and hence to "the outpopulating power" of a nation, woman is superior. She has by nature the strength that lies in chastity, loyalty, and the appreciation of the higher spiritual quantities of reverence, self-control and idealism. Man is carnal, drunken and earthy, only kept up to the mark by the enchantment woman casts upon him.

The "mastery" of such men as Napoleon and Bismarck is crude, cheap stuff. The world today, and even more tomorrow, needs and will need another kind of mastery, not that of battle might, of Tammany power, of the brutal efficiency of enormous capital, but the mastery of conscience, of the sense of justice, and of the just estimate of human values.

Here woman is supreme. Hail to her, queen of the coming race!

Even today a man does no work worth while except it be to lay it at the feet of the woman he serves.

Some time ago the team got a challenge from the club of a similar institution and, wishing to encourage the boys, the minister gave them $5, telling them to spend it for bats, balls, gloves or anything that would help win the game.

Came the great day and the minister went down to the ball field. Glancing around, he saw the same old paraphernalia. Not a single new article was in sight.

"Come here a minute, Willie," said he, calling the captain. "Where are your new bats, balls and gloves?"

"We haven't got any new bats, balls and gloves," said Willie, glancing from the dominie to the opposing team.

"You haven't!" exclaimed the surprised pastor. "Didn't I give you $5 to buy them?"

"Yes, sir," replied Willie, "but you told us to spend it in any way we thought best to win the game, so we gave it to the umpire."

SAY TAX EQUALIZATION IS NOW "UP TO" HOUSE

President Anderson and Senator Miller Discuss Passage of Bill by Senate

At 7:45 o'clock Monday night the Georgia senate by a vote of 29 to 12 passed the Miller-Anderson substitute to the sheppard substitute to the Lipscomb tax equalization bill, after a debate of nearly five hours which centered around the question as to whether or not the bill should include a section providing for a state tax commissioner.

The bill passed with this section intact, and was ordered immediately transmitted to the house, where it should take precedence over any other bill now before that body.

When the bill passed the senate the members greeted the announcement of the vote with a burst of applause, and President Anderson said: "The chair compliments the senate upon its action."

President Anderson and Senator Miller were seen after the bill had passed and stated that it was now distinctly "up to" the house. The senate had done its duty, they said, in providing a bill which they declared would bring a million dollars additional into the state's treasury within the next two years and enable the state to pay school teachers and all other outstanding debts.

"They ought to take up this bill," said Mr. Miller, "before they pass on the appropriations bill. If the house passes this tax measure in its present form, I think the senate would be willing to put back some of the appropriations that it cut off the general budget."

HAD LONG DEBATE.

The tax question was taken up by the senate immediately after it convened at 3 o'clock Monday. A motion was made and carried that the session be extended until 7 o'clock and later this motion was changed so that the session was extended until the bill was disposed of.

Senator Miller, the chairman of the finance committee and one of the joint authors of the bill, was the first speaker to take the floor. He spoke for two hours and a half, explaining each and every section of the bill exhaustively, answering all questions and making a strong plea that the senate pass the measure.

He was followed by Senator DuBose, the leader of those who signed the minority report on the bill. Senator DuBose spoke, by his own statement, longer than any time in his life before," about an hour.

When he had concluded it was nearly 7 o'clock and the previous question was called for. The time of the minority was then divided between Senators McGregor and Oliff, while the committee's time was taken up by Senators Sweat, Smith and McNeil.

The senate then began to act on the various amendments offered. The amendment of Senator DuBose striking that part of the bill which provided for a state tax commissioner, was lost. Seven amendments offered by Senator Smith, one providing for a state board instead of a state commissioner was lost. The only amendments passed were four offered by the authors of the bill.

HOW THEY VOTED.

When the vote was called the following senators voted for the bill, in the list one who had signed the minority report but who stated that he had been won to the bill by the afternoon speeches: Allen, Brown, Bulloch, Burts, Converse, Elkins, Ford, Foster, Harrell, Hixon, Huie, Irwin, Jones, Johnson, Longino, McNeil, Miller, Moore, Perry, Richardson, Rushin, Searcy, Spinks, Stark, Sweat, Tarver, Turner, Tyson and Watts—29.

The senators who voted against the bill were: Bush, Chennault, Dickey, DuBose, Jones, Kea, McGregor, Oliff, Parrish, Pope, Smith and Taylor—12.

The bill, as passed by the senate, will have the effect, it is said, of "turning up" millions of dollars' worth of "hidden property" which has not been assessed for taxes in the past. It is claimed that it will equalize the taxes of property owners in the same part of the state and while increasing the state's revenue by bringing in more tax returns, will at the same time not be a hardship on those who have honestly returned their taxes in the past.

PROVISIONS OF BILL.

Its provisions are as follows:

Section 1, provides that the tax books shall be open from February 1 to May 1. Twenty days thereafter the returns shall be in the hands of the county boards of assessors.

Section 2, provides that there shall be boards of assessors in each county, to be appointed by the board of commissioners or the ordinary.

Section 3, provides that on the first appointment of these boards, one member shall serve for two years, one member for four years, and the third member for six years, beginning January 1, 1914. After the first term, the members shall be appointed for a six years' term.

Section 4, provides for the requirements of the board members.

Section 5, provides that the board shall elect one of its members a a chairman for a term of not less than two years. It provides, too, that the board shall have authority to employ an agent to seek out unreturned property and who shall receive a commission of 10 per cent of the amount of tax accruing to the county from such unreturned property. The latter provision is one of the most important in the bill, for on it depends in large measure the discovery of unreturned property and thus an increased revenue to the state.

Section 6, provides that the board shall meet within twenty days of the closing of the tax books each year to receive and inspect the returns. Any citizen dissatisfied with the returns on his property may so notify the board, when he shall name an arbitrator, the board shall name an arbitrator, and these two shall name a third arbitrator, the decision of the majority of the three to be final.

Section 7, provides for the duties of the board.

Section 8, gives the board authority to have placed on the digest for the current year an assessment of all property in the county for tax assessment.

Section 9, provides for the serving of subpenas.

Section 10, provides that the boards shall complete their assessments by July 1 of each year and forward them to the state comptroller.

Section 11, creates the office of state tax commissioner, to be appointed by the governor with the approval of the senate, to hold office six years at a salary of $2,500 per annum. He shall have his office at the state capitol.

Section 12, provides that the commissioner investigate the tax conditions in the state and report to the general assembly any change in the tax laws which he thinks advisable.

Section 13, provides for the duties of the commissioner.

Section 14, provides that when the commissioner notifies any county board of advisable changes the board shall call a meeting for that purpose, arbitrators to be named if the board is dissatisfied with his recommendation.

Section 15, provides that the state tax commissioner shall visit different parts of the state.

Section 4 is amended by the committee so that on petition of the taxpayers of the county a member of a board shall answer to the judge of the superior court for any alleged negligence or violation of duties.

SENATE CATCHES UP.

At 11:30 o'clock Tuesday morning the state senate "caught up" and adjourned until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The bills which were placed on the calendar by the steering committee were passed or killed, and all the senate can do now is to wait until the house sends its bills for action.

According to the rules made by the steering committees of both houses all bills are referred to the rules committees when they are sent to either house, and it shall be the function of those committees to decide whether the bills shall be taken up during the remaining three days of the present session or held until next year.

As a result the senate passed but a few local bills Tuesday morning and several general bills. It confirmed some appointments nominated by the governor, but the major part of the morning was taken up by committee meetings.

The only two general bills acted on were those of Senator McGregor's, one repealing the act which prescribes under what conditions the state militia may be called out, and the other a new act naming those conditions.

The finance committee met and decided to favor the bills authorizing the governor to borrow funds. This bill has passed the house. Another house bill, known as the "auto tax" bill, was favored by this committee.

The education committee acted on the substitute to the McCrory school book bill which appoints a commission to investigate the renewal of the school book contract which expires this year. The committee approved the bill after making several amendments to it. One is to increase the size of the commission by adding to it the members of the board of education. The commission, as amended, will consist of three from the house, two from the senate, the governor, the superintendent, and the board of education. The bill, as passed by the house, carried an amendment that the contract could be abrogated if six months' notice was given. The senate committee amended it so that twelve months' notice would have to be given.

The committee on appropriations met and favored a bill of the house appropriating a special fund for the department of agriculture.

M'ELREATH BOOSTED FOR NEW JUDGESHIP

Pomeroy and Judge Roan Also Are Urged as Fitting Candidates

The name of Walter McElreath has been suggested in connection with the appointment of the fourth judge of the superior court, in the event Governor Slaton should acquiesce in the views of the Atlanta bar and appoint an Atlanta attorney to this position.

The members of the bar supporting Mr. McElreath will urge, as good reasons for his appointment, his experience and ability as an attorney, his long residence in Atlanta and his general administrative capacity. The supporters of Mr. McElreath state that Governor Slaton will receive letters from a large number of the local bar urging Mr. McElreath's appointment.

Colonel E. E. Pomeroy, of Atlanta, also has been indorsed by his friends for the appointment and a committee will call upon the governor in his interest. Judge L. S. Roan, of the Stone Mountain circuit, who presides over the criminal superior court of Fulton under a special act of the legislature, is most prominently mentioned outside of Atlanta for the new judgeship. He has been indorsed by many leaders of the Atlanta bar.

Policeman Shoots at Dog and Hits Lawyer

You have heard of "aiming at a star and hitting a chorus girl" but did you ever hear of a policeman aiming at a dog and hitting a lawyer? Never have? Well it's a fact and there is more to the story.

Monday about midnight W. C. Munday, a member of the law firm of Munday and Cornwell, and J. L. Hays, an employe at the Fulton county tower, were returning from a lodge meeting, and had stopped in front of the state capitol, in the shadow of John B. Gordon's monument, for a chat before going to their homes.

Three policemen and one plain-clothes man were walking toward them and one of the officers, becoming peeved at a crowd of dogs frisking in the street, pulled his revolver and fired. The bullet caromed off the curbstone and lodged in Munday's left thigh. He was hurried to the Grady where the doctor probed for the bullet and extracted it. The wound was merely of the flesh and not serious. During the probing lawyer Munday puffed on a cigar indifferent to the proceedings.

Tuesday morning found him at his desk and the ecffects were felt more keenly than the night before. He complained of a severe pain in his thigh.

Mr. Munday's offices are in the Kiser building and his residence on Cherokee avenue.

Legion of Honor for France's Greatest Woman Composer

PARIS.—Among the 374 persons who have ben made members of the Legion of Honor or who have been promoted in rank in that organization on the occasion of this year's celebration of the Quatorze Juilliet are three women, one of whom is Mme. Cecile Chaminade, the most famous living female composer of music, who is well known to thousands of Americans who heard her play in different cities of the United States in 1908.

Two Americans are also included in the list. They are Charles F. Beach, lecturer on Anglo-American law at the University of Paris, and Morton Fullerton, United States commissioner to the Lyons exposition, who are made chevaliers of the legion.

Mme. Cecile Louise Stephanie Chaminade-Carbonnel, befer known to music lovers as Cecile Chaminade, is now about fifty-two years old. She made her debut at the age of eighteen, after having studied music on the advice of Bizet, who heard her play when she was only eight. Those of her compositions best known in America are "Scarf Dance" and "Serenade." Besides being a composer she is an admirable pianist. The decoration which she has just received from France is the third given in recognition of her genius, England and Turkey having already so honored her.—New York Sun.

AN ATTRACTIVE VISITOR

MISS ALMA KLUM, OF COLUMBUS, Who is visiting Miss Eddie Lee Terrell.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

It is a dangerous thing to say that beads are in fashion. The reason is that few women know how to wear them.

They have always been a favorite adornment of the so-called artistic women who make no pretense of following the fashion but dress according to some mysterious code of their own and to the eye trained to conventional apparel, these women appear weird. They usually impress one as belonging to a tribe not known in the cities. Yet they are often women of undoubted brilliancy or mental achievement.

Take, for instance, the wife of Paul Poiret. She is an artist, when she appears at an afternoon hour carelessly robed in dark green crepe de chine, showing one bare shoulder and no waist line, with huge cameos doing duty for hooks and eyes, she does not look as though she belonged to any of us. And the beauty of her costume, for that hour, must always have an interrogation point after it.

Such women wear beads, and so do their followers, and those who have not the faintest idea of the cut of a gown, or the juxtaposition of colors will often cover their necks with huge bauble that mean nothing.

Beads Are Fashionable.

The world of fashion has frowned upon these tribal ornaments, but today it smiles upon them. They are not only sold in the booths at summer resorts and worn by those who dress queerly, but they are offered by the highest class of shops and indulged in by well-dressed women. Here they are used sparingly and with discretion.

In Paris the women are wearing wonderful amber beads as well as those of jade and mother-of-pearl. Here and there one sees ivory, carved and plain, but these are difficult to put under the human face as they are too cumbersome.

It is better to have the beads translucent, for they are more becoming and are easier to get. The trouble about this statement is that women will buy the cheapest kind of unimportant beads at the fancy work department of the large shops, string them up on surgeon's thread, then wear them without regard to the gown or the occasion.

There are all kinds of corals in white and pink and red that make good looking strings for morning gowns, and today one sees these used as a high light on a suit of dark blue serge or black satin, as well as on a gown of taupe satin trimmed with ecru lace, or one of black matelasse. The white coral beads are especially attractive with any kind of a coat suit provided it is not of hairy material. It may be thick, but it must be smooth in a fashion, if one is going to wear jewelry with it. Those good looking Berlin wools which women are using for rough coat suits do not stand the addition of these necklaces.

Amber Beads in Demand.

Because Paris has put its seal of approval on yellow as a leading color, women are wearing strings of amber beads. These are short or long, and are added to gowns of dark and light fabrics. They are not worn in the evening, although they are attractive with half low afternoon gowns made of transparent material.

The dominant fashion for black and yellow, which is not as popular in America as in Paris, makes these amber beads quite effective on black lace and net frocks, especially when there is a crossed surplice of cream lace against the skin.

Strings of different colored beads are no longer looked upon with favor. The color must be uniform and the beads must be graduate in size. The long strings that reach to the waist are not fashionable. They do not give the right line to the figure, and so the short string that reaches to the bust is preferred.

WEDDINGS

Williams-Holcombe

A wedding of much interest was that of Miss Aline Holcombe to Mr. Marion Williams, taking place at the home or the bride's mother Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the presence of a small gathering of relatives and friends, Dr. A. R. Holderby officiating.

The bride wore a becoming suit of blue with hat and gloves to match.

Miss Ethel Rutherford and Mr. G. C. Holcombe were the only attendants.

Miss Holcombe is the youngest daughter of Mrs. R. E. Holcombe.

Mr. Williams is connected with the N. C. & St. L. railway, and is well known in railroad circles.

After a wedding trip to northern points Mr. and Mrs. Holcombe will be at home to their friends at 41 Orme street.

Roesel-Dietz

Mrs. A. G. Schwitzerlet announces the marriage of her sister, Miss Martha Christina Roesel, to Mr. Charles Frederick Dietz which took place quietly owing to a recent bereavement in the bride's family.

Mr. and Mrs. Dietz left immediately for Jacksonville, and will make their home in Tampa, Fla.

Mother Goose Pantomimes

Nearly forty children of Druid Hills will take part in the mammoth series of "Mother Goose" pantomimes to be given at 8 o'clock Thursday night in the Sunday school rooms of the Druid Hills Methodist church, corner of Seminole and Blue Ridge avenues, under the auspices of the primnary department.

Elaborate preparations have been made to make the representations ot the "Mother Goose" characters as vivid and realistic as posible. The scenery and stage settings have been arranged with great care and skill and the costumes of the little folk will be truly representative of the traditional characters.

One of the most striking of the pantomimes will be that of "Mary, Mary, quite contrary, how does your garden grow?" The "pretty maids all in a row" will be dressed to represent the various flowers of Mary's garden.

"Little Miss Muffet" also will be a spectacular representation. "Old Mother Hubbard" also will be there, along with the dogs that "do bark" when "the beggars are coming to town," and in fact all the principal characters of "Mother Goose" portrayed by the pretty Druid Hills children.

The public generally is cordially invited.

From the gayest and busiest life of a most popular and charming society woman, a leader in the smartest affairs of New York, Newport and Bar Harbor society, to the loneliest, most hermit-like existence imaginable in the quiet little city of Portland, Me., is the change that has recently come to the dashing Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, the former Kitty Duer.

She has no relatives or friends to keep her company. She dines with all the pomp that would attend a large family dinner—but alone. No visitors have been received by her. The postman leaves but little mail.

That intended divorce is the most likely reason for burying herself in the quaint little city is based largely upon the known fact that her millionaire husband several weeks ago sailed for Europe, bag and baggage, taking their three children and with never a word to the wife and mother. The domestic life of the Mackays has been anything but congenial. They have been living apart for some time.

Notwithstanding the separation, Mrs. Mackay still is the second wealthiest resident of North Hempstead, L. I., according to her assessment on the tax book. Mrs. Mackay is assessed for $300,000 in real and $150,000 in personal property.

There was a jolly little dinner and felicitations all around.

"New York is horrible." is Mrs. Ruth Grayson's signed opinion, just published in an English journal. Mrs. Grayson and her husband, a well known English socialist, visited America recently. Mrs. Grayson, whom the journal describes as "a charming woman," gives her impressions most frankly.

"No wonder," she writes, "a certain French count who recently left New York quite cruelly but emphatically told the press that New York's fashionable ladies were the simple dupes of third-class French dressmakers and milliners; American women walk badly, with a slouching gait, chins poked forward in the absurdist manner, rounded shoulders, and scarcely ever a head erect."

As to "freedom" (quoted, please, in America), Mrs. Grayson was vastly surprised that after dining with her husband in a restaurant she was not allowed to smoke a cigarette with her coffee. Nor, on a long railway journey, was she permitted to enter the smoking with her husband.

"I repeat that America is not free." Mrs. Grayson asserts. One proof is that "at the seaside resorts, where ladies are graciously permitted to wear their bathing costumes all day, it is against the law to bathe without stockings."

Another evidence of America's slavery is that Mrs. Grayson was forbidden to drink beer with her husband at the "bar" of a really "decent-looking saloon."

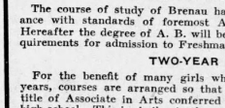
BRENAU COLLEGE CONSERVATORY



GAINESVILLE, GEORGIA (Fifty Miles from Atlanta)
In the Heart of the Old South; Alive with the Spirit of the New SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
The course of study of Brenau has recently been revised in accordance with standards of foremost American universities and colleges. Hereafter the degree of A. B. will be the only degree granted. The requirements for admission to Freshman Class are fourteen units.
TWO-YEAR COURSES.
For the benefit of many girls who can remain in college only two years, courses are arranged so that diploma may be received and the title of Associate in Arts conferred at the end of two years after the high school. This is similar to the practice of the University of Chicago.
PREPARATORY COURSES.
Courses equivalent to the work of a first-class high school are offered, and provision is made to receive pupils as young as fourteen years of age.
MUSIC, ORATORY, ART, DOMESTIC SCIENCE.
These subjects are especially suited to the needs of the average woman, and may be offered at Brenau as electives for the A. B. degree. Diplomas in each of these subjects are also offered.
Brenau has no competitors in the South in these special courses, and the demand for teachers who are graduates of Brenau is far greater than can be supplied.
The next term begins September 11. Only a few places are still open.
NEW BOOK READY.
A beautiful new book, entitled "Brenau Girl," has just been published. It is sent free upon request.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Drummer the Woodpecker was making the old orchard ring with the rat-tat-tat he was beating on a hollow limb of an old apple tree. It was an angry rat-a-tat. No one could hear it without knowing that Drummer the Woodpecker was in a great rage. He was. There was no doubt about it. But who wouldn't be after being robbed a second time? And that is just what had happened to Drummer. Yes, sir, he had been robbed a second time. He had left his house unguarded for just a few minutes and when he returned the beautiful white egg of which he and Mrs. Drummer were so proud was gone. This would have been bad enough if the very same thing hadn't happened only the day before.

Drummer the Woodpecker was sure that he knew who the robber was. Hadn't Chatterer the Red Squirrel seen Sammy Jay pulling his head out of Drummer's doorway with something white in his mouth? He said that he had, anyway, and Drummer believed him. Now there couldn't be any doubt about it, for there, just at the foot of the tree, was a feather and it was blue and white. More than that there was the harsh voice of Sammy Jay over in another part of the old orchard this very minute.

Drummer stopped beating the rat-a-tat-tat on the hollow limb and started for the place where he heard the voice of Sammy Jay. Like a red-capped fury he rushed at Sammy Jay and it is well for Sammy that he saw him coming.

"What's the matter with you, Drummer?" demanded Sammy, angrily.

"A pretty question for you to ask!" snapped Drummer the Woodpecker, as he once more rushed at Sammy Jay. "I'll teach you to rob me of my eggs, you thief!"

Now, of course all the other birds in the old orchard hurried up to see what all the fuss was about, and no sooner did they hear Drummer the Woodpecker Call Sammy Jay a thief than they all took up the cry and began to dart at Sammy Jay and pull his feathers out. And, of course, Sammy flew into a terrible rage and called everybody names. But names don't really hurt, though some folks act as if they did, while sharp-pointed bills do.

Drummer the Woodpecker and Sammy Jay and all the rest of the birds in the old orchard were so many of these that his beautiful blue coat would be torn all to pieces if he didn't get away. So screaming with rage, twisting and dodging this way and that way, Sammy flew to the shelter of the Green Forest, while after him for a little way flew all the birds of the old orchard, with Drummer the Woodpecker in the lead and all screaming at the top of their lungs, "Thief! Thief! Thief!"

Sammy hid in a thick hemlock tree in the darkest part of the Green Forest and the more he thought about how he had been treated the angrier he grew.

"Drummer the Woodpecker had no right to say that I stole his eggs! I say, I don't even know where his house is! Somebody else stole the eggs and I'm blamed for it without any cause whatever," he complained bitterly. You see, he quite overlooked the fact that people are judged by their acts in the past quite as much as by what they may or may not do in the present, and because everybody knew that he had stolen whenever he got the chance every one believed right away that he had stolen the eggs of Drummer the Woodpecker. And that was what hurt. He was being blamed for something he didn't do at all.

So Sammy Jay had found at last. That he must suffer for the past.

The Evening Story — TIRED

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Worner.)

Dr. Jeffrey was the picture of weariness as he entered his reception room on a scorching eevning in August. He had been up all the night before with the Thompson baby; the day had been the hardest of the summer, bringing one heat prostration after another at the Morley ironworks and a serious accident to the occupants of a touring automobile. And tonight came Phillipa

Sitting alone she saw his electric pass about 9 o'clock.

Morley's lawn fete. Phil and he were to be married in the autumn. Naturally he would be her right hand man at the function. And he was so tired! If only he might call her up and beg off. But he didn't dare. For weeks he had noticed that Phil was becoming decidedly irritable over broken social engagements. Only a few evenings before she had told him with a frown puckering her pretty little mouth that she was heartily tired of giving the excuse, "Dr. Jeffrey is so busy and so tired he could not possibly come." She had said also, "Don't you suppose, Bruce, that I was tired on the night of Mrs. Preston's bridge? I had been motoring all morning and standing in the receiving line of a most dreadfully crowded reception all afternoon. Yet I managed to make the Preston bridge, and so could you."

Her eyes flashed furiously at his smile of toleration, the smile one gives a child, who does not understand, and she had turned from him angrily when he had said: "Tired? In all your petted young life, Phil, you've never known work weariness."

He stood a moment thinking of this tiff and numerous others which had preceded it; then he threw himself on the couch and almost instantly was sleeping the heavy sleep of utter exhaustion.

When he awakened he found the clock with the hour hand almost at 12. He was on his feet in a moment. Phil's lawn affair was a thing of the past and he had failed her! But then he had been so tired! When she knew of course she would sympathize. It would be all right when he explained. And he would do so now, late as it was.

Her voice came over the wire almost immediately. "Phil," he said, beseechingly, "I'm so awfully sorry—I don't know what to say for myself—"

"No?" was the reply, very coldly. "Is it necessary to say anything?" Then the words, coming passionately: "I've been getting used to slights, Bruce, and the queer little smiles which greet the tiresome excuse, 'Dr. Jeffrey is so tired!' But tonight you've stepped over the line marked patience. You did not even consider it of sufficient importance to let me know you did not want to come. You—"

"Phil, Phil," he cut in, "don't talk nonsense! Just listen to me, and—"

The banging of the receiver in the hook interrupted him. For an instant he hesitated. Would he call her again and endeavor to complete his explanation? "No, by George, I won't!" he said aloud, the hurt of being judged unheard coupled with the fatigue that had got the best of him crowding out the good nature that always laughed at Phillipa's flames of anger. "Phil must know the trouble she has been at her father's foundry today; she must know that I'm dead tired. So if she wants any further explanation she will come to me."

Next day the mercury was higher; prostrations were more numerous; he had sick babies on his hands. He never even thought of his usual call on Phillipa. Neither did he try to find time to telephone. His resolution of the night before had not weakened. Pampered little Phil must come to him.

He found a note from her on his desk that evening and his eyes glowed. All day he had longed for her sympathy. Now he would find it.

Her note did not cover half a page. It was cool in its brevity. He crumpled it up in a sudden passion and threw it far from him. Then with a scowl he sat down and stared at it. Gradually anger left his face, fatigue and sorrow taking its place. "It's the best thing," he said, after many moments, and turned to pen and paper.

"As you wish it," he wrote, "I will try to see, Phil, that the breaking of our engagement is for the best. I feel now that I was wrong to ask a girl who has had life as easy as you have had it to share one that must necessarily be a life of constant sacrifice. My time is not my own now, as you think it should be; it could never be wholly yours."

Phillipa Morley stormed and cried over that letter. She had not looked for it. She had expected his voice to come over the telephone in eager protest, and she had sent her note that he might receive it in the early evening. She had donned a particularly charming gown that Bruce admired in the certainty that, after the talk over the wire, when she would forgive him with the right degree of condescension, he would spend the evening on the Morley shaded veranda. Instead of which, sitting there alone, she saw his electric runabout pass at 9 o'clock and in the bright moonlight never once, she saw, were his eyes turned toward the Morley home. Then in the morning came his note, brief as hers had been.

Through the balance of the hot summer he never evinced the slightest inclination to eat humble pie, but went on his way as though she had never been in his life. For the first time in her petted, sheltered existence she was finding one who would not give in to what he had once termed her whims and fancies. And she began to love him as she never had in the days of their courtship. The constant round of gayety palled. She missed Bruce's serious talks about the life work in front of him, though she once had privately thought him tiresome. She longed for some break in what came to be monotony, and finally she had her desire in a way never dreamed of.

"I came, Phil, and now what are you going to say to me?"

Since early summer, when her brother and his wife had gone abroad, she had had their three children and their nurse with her. She woke up one morning to find one of the children with a beautifully developed case of measles. By the end of the week they were all down and Dr. Jffrey was away on a much needed holiday.

"You must have a day and night nurse, Miss Morley," the doctor in attendance told her. "I will wire up to the city and—"

"Thank you very much doctor; it is not necessary. Their own nurse and I can manage." The thought of Dr. Jeffrey's letter had come. "It will be a break in this 'easy' life of mine," she told herself.

It was more of a "break" than she looked for. She learned what it was to have every inch of her ache to be so desperately tired that she felt she must give in to her father and the doctor and send for those nurses. But she kept on doggedly. "It's what Bruce is going through all the time," she often whispered to herself.

It was not until the oldest boy, gravely ill, was pronounced out of danger that weariness conquered. He had been resting quietly all the evening, Phillipa watching, waiting for the doctor's night call, when she would leave him in the hands of his nurse. She must have sleep. In forty-eight hours she had not had any. She looked yearningly at a couch. It might be just as well to wait for the doctor, resting there—she was so tired!

She opened her eyes slowly and reluctantly. She seemed to see the room and the sick child as in a dream. And the figure by the bed? It was not father, the doctor, the nurse. Suddenly she sat up with a queer little cry, and Dr. Jeffrey came to her quickly. She was on her feet then, saying in a breathless way: "I was waiting for the doctor. I was so tired! I just lay down for a moment, and—"

Dr. Jeffrey laughed softly. "And then you fell sound asleep, just as I did on a certain night you would not listen to me. You—"

"Bruce, was that it?" she interrupted eagerly. "And I was such a little beast!" A sob caught in her throat. "You didn't understand, Phil. You couldn't, because you had never been tired that way in all your life. Now," he took her in his arms gently, "Phil, when I came home and heard what you had been doing I phoned you to ask if I might come to you, not the children. Your father answered. He told me how the doctor had found you—a worn out little atom, sound asleep. I came, Phil, and now what are you going to say to me? The autumn is near, dear—"

"And I better fitted to be a doctor's wife than if those blessed measles hadn't come," she said softly.

Baby's summer skin troubles

How to prevent them

During the hot summer months your baby's skin needs especial care. The high temperature and free perspiration cause the slightest thing to irritate it.

To prevent it becoming raw or chafed and breaking out in rashes and red spots bathe your baby daily with Woodbury's Facial Soap in the following way: Use luke-warm water, and with a very soft washcloth or silk sponge apply a generous lather of Woodbury's over the entire body. Then rinse with slightly cooler water and pat with a soft towel until the little body is thoroughly dry.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of an authority on the skin and its needs. It has been recommended for years by physicians because of its valuable properties. Its cleansing action and mild antiseptic quality are just what your baby's skin needs for summer protection.

Woodbury's Facial Soap costs 25c a cake. No mother hesitates at the price after the first cake. Begin now to get its benefits. Get a cake today and try the treatment described above. See how delightfully sweet, smooth and soft it leaves your baby's skin.

ISSUED IN THE INTEREST OF THE SOUTHERN MERCHANTS CONVENTION

ROLAND ROWE, Editor — A Department of The Atlanta Journal — J. LOUIS CAMPBELL, Ass't. Editor

SECOND WEEK OPENS WITH REGISTRATION OF RECORD CROWD

Registrars Enroll the Largest Number Names Monday and Tuesday of Any Similar Period of Meeting

VISITORS ATTEND BIG THEATER PARTY

Wholesale Houses Have Fall Milinery Openings – Dealers Come From All Parts of the Southeast

The Southern Merchants' convention has entered upon its second week with a record attendance. Monday showed the largest registration of any one day yet and Tuesday morning kept the pace that had been set. Atlanta is filled with the visitors who came from Alabama, Georgia, the Carolinas and in fact from all parts of the southeastern territory. The old friends of Atlanta came to renew their loyalty and with them came many new ones.

The opening of the registration books at the Piedmont hotel Monday morning at 10 o'clock found a large crowd waiting to be enrolled and thereafter until closing time at 6 o'clock the registrars were rushed with the work of taking the names of the delegates and supplying them with tickets to the theater, the barbecue and ball game and directing them to hotels and seing that all were comfortably settled for the week's festivities.

With no formal meeting or event scheduled Monday the visitors spent the day greeting old friends and visiting the wholesale houses where they found the genuine brand of Atlanta welcome awaiting them. And at night was the theater party at the Forsyth and a monster party it was. The entire theater was engaged for the visitors and every seat was filled.

The merchants continued to pour in Tuesday morning and with the whole day in which to look about the city and attend to personal engagements they and the others that are to come this afternoon and tomorrow morning will make up the biggest crowd of the convention for the grand barbecue to be held at Ponce de Leon spring Wednesday afternoon.

"We are to have a glorious week," said Bolling H. Jones, president of the convention, who was at registration headquarters Monday. "We promised the visiting merchants a good time and we intend they shall have it. From the way they are responding to the call for the celebration here, I am sure this will be a memorable week in Atlanta's history."

The fall opening of the wholesale millinery houses was launched Monday with a crowd of visiting dealers conservatively estimated at 200.

"There were at least 200 millinery firms represented by the visitors here Monday," said E. L. Rhodes, of the E. L. Rhodes company, "and I am sure that this number will run between 500 and 600 before the week is over."

"All five of our salesmen are here this week," said C. B. Palmer, of M. Kuts and company. "Our real opening began Monday and was a big success from the start, though our season is starting this year some days earlier than usual. It, however, fits in well with the meeting of the convention. We find that the millinery openings are proving a help to the convention and that the convention is helping our openings in the finest way possible."

All the wholesale houses felt the stimulus of the big attendance Monday and Tuesday and everybody connected with the convention, every firm member and every salesman say, "There's nothing else to it, the convention of 1913 will end in a blaze of glory."

100 MILES BETWEEN HERE AND COMER LOOKS GOOD

Merchants Who Made Trip by Auto Say Crops Are Fine

W. G. Cook and W. A. Rowe, merchants of Comer, Ga., arrived in Atlanta yesterday, ater making the hundred mile trip by motor car.

Making the trip leisurely they took careful note of the crop conditions all along the way, and for this reason their is a comment on this matter worth heeding.

Both agree they have never seen things looking better for fine crops and an excellent fall business.

"They report conditions good all over the state," says Mr. Rowe, "and I can declare emphatically from careful inspection that it is going to be a prosperous fall in the stretch of country we came through."

Both merchants will be here several days.

HANDLING CATALOGS ADDS TO MONTAG'S ACTIVITIES

While the sample room at Montag Brothers is alive with visiting buyers of holiday goods, the office force is also due for a particularly busy time starting tomorrow, when the work of distributing the 7,000 copies of the new catalogue begins.

The first copies are being received from the printer today and show that the promises the firm has made of its 58th annual catalogue being the biggest and best yet have been kept.

In addition to the handling of the catalogue matter and the visiting buyers, the season for mail orders for school supplies is getting well started with the biggest batch of such orders yet received making their appearance in Monday morning's mail.

He has stood by Atlanta ever since in spite of the inducements from other jobbing centers, always finding he could get the goods and prices here, he says. Incidentally, this man with the long record for Atlanta buying has been successful as a small town merchant. He has not had a single bad year and is a partner in a big general mercantile business that is prospering.

B. H. H. Roan, who travels for the Silvey & Dougherty Hat company, wants all his visiting merchant friends from southwest Georgia to know that he is right here all this week, and wants them to be sure to drop in to see him.

BARBECUE WILL BE BIG EVENT OF WEEK

Street Cars Will Leave Equitable Building Wednesday Promptly at Noon

The central feature of the present week of the Southern Merchants' association will be the big barbecue to be held at Ponce de Leon spring Wednesday afternon at 1 o'clock. Street cars for the entire crowd will leave the Equitable building at 12 o'clock sharp. Everybody is urged to be present promptly on time for this car ride and the start to Ponce de Leon.

The barbecue will be the occasion of the greatest gathering of the entire two weeks' meeting. J. R. Little, head of the barbecue committee, stated Tuesday morning that everything was in readiness for the great event. A big time and a royal feast is assured everybody.

FOR THIRTY YEARS HE HAS BEEN BUYING HERE

In business thirty years and a buyer in the Atlanta wholesale market every one of those years is the record as an Atlanta buyer of J. W. McWilliams, of Gay, Ga.

At the Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, where he was looking over the line of fabrics for fall this morning Mr. McWilliams recalled that it was in October, 1882, that he bought his first bill of goods from a wholesale house and the concern was the old M. C. & J. F. Kiser company. At the same time he started buying from the

"There's a Reason"

"ATLANTA'S BEST STUNT" MERCHANT CALLS EXHIBIT

Convention Visitor Is Enthusiastic Over Manufacturers' Permanent Display

"The biggest thing that Atlanta has done yet," is the way W. E. Stowe, a prominent merchant of Newborn, Ga., characterizes the manufacturers' permanent exhibit, to be established here.

"As a merchant, I am delighted over the successful result of the campaign to make this idea a reality. It is going to mean far more to the merchants who buy in Atlanta than many people realize.

"The manufacturers who take space in the building for exhibits are going to find themselves repaid many times over by the trade it will bring them from the merchants who visit Atlanta.

"We merchants recognize it as a great convenience to us in our dealings with the factories we already patronize and many of us will doubtless find articles on exhibit that we will want to add to our line, resulting in new accounts for the manufacturer. This exhibit idea is going to be a bigger ad for Atlanta factories with the merchants of the south than anything they have ever done."

Mr. Stowe is of the firm of W. E. Stowe & Co., and has been in the general mercantile business for twenty years, for the last ten under his present firm name.

He is here for the convention festivities and also to buy, as he is loyal to the Atlanta market.

"I have been buying in Atlanta during the entire twenty years I have been in business," he says, "and the offerings Atlanta has for the retail merchant convince me it is growing better all the time as a wholesale market."

MAKES 400-MILE TRIP TO BUY IN ATLANTA

A four hundred-mile trip to Atlanta shows how Atlanta is regarded as a buying center by J. F. Hill from Tallahassee, Fla.

Mr. Hill visits Atlanta every year for the convention festivities and to deal with Atlanta jobbers. He arrived this morning and will be here until Friday.

A small stock and frequent turnovers is the doctrine Mr. Hill considers should be advocated incessantly with the retail merchants and is thoroughly in sympathy with the work of the Southern Merchants' convention along this line.

ATLANTA'S WHOLESALE MARKET WINS NEW BUYER FROM ALABAMA

Comes From Neighboring State to Attend Merchants' Meeting and Makes First Purchases — Is Delighted With City

Among the marked features of present Southern Merchants' convention is the number of new patrons of Atlanta's wholesale market who are here this year. The merit of the wares of Atlanta's wholesalers is known far and wide and it is constantly winning for this city the trade of firms which have been buying elsewhere.

A. C. NOLEN,
of Notasulga, Ala., photographed at Ragan-Malone Co., while discussing Atlanta's merits as a jobbing center.

At practically every one of the jobbing houses the visit of one or more new buyers is commented on. They became noticeable on the very beginning day of the convention and still they come.

Among the new friends of Atlanta's market none is more enthusiastic than A. C. Nolen, of Notasulga, Ala. He was found Monday afternoon at Ragan-Malone company's, where he was making purchases of his fall stock.

"I have bought some few things in Atlanta before," said he, "but this is my first purchase here of dry goods and first extensive purchase of any kind. I am delighted with Atlanta and Atlanta hospitality. I expect to be here several days and I am sure I will have a big time."

Mr. Nolen is accompanied by Mrs. Nolen and Mrs. Nolen's sister, Miss Allie Dorman. Morris C. Croft, the Ragan-Malone's Alabama traveler, was host and was assisting Mr. Nolen in the purchase of his stock.

KISER REDUCES MINORITY THAT BUYS ELSEWHERE

The M. C. Kiser company have made something of a dent in the minority of the southern merchants who still buy in distant markets by opening twenty new accounts during the convention period so far.

J. G. Addy is taking the honors up to date for the largest number of new customers secured by one salesman. He has put five new names on the books.

To indicate from where the Kiser company is landing trade that has been going to other markets, of those five, two have been buying from western houses, one in the east, and the other two in other southern cities.

You can't keep T. S. Sharp, a merchant who hails from the vicinity of Macon, away from a barbecue. He was in Atlanta several weeks ago attending to most of his buying for fall, but came over again yesterday to be here until after the 'cue.

Another nearby merchant spending much time here is Hubert McAfee, of Perkinson & McAfee, Woodstock, Ga. He was here buying Monday and will be back tomorrow for the eats at Ponce de Leon.

Motor Races for Tuesday Night With Boxing on Wednesday

Merchants to Attend Race; Added Events

Forrest Adair Seepstakes Big Feature of Program Arranged for Motordrome on Tuesday Evening

Four races are on the program of the local motordrome for Tuesday night, three regular races, and one race which was carried over from Friday night. This race which is to be run off is the special match race between Harry Glenn and Lockner. On Friday night each of these riders won a heat in their race, and the third heat was run to a dead finish. This two-mile heat will be run off.

The three regular scheduled races should all be good. First there is a Southern Merchants' purse race, which is put on in honor of the visiting merchants. This race will be for two miles, the trial heats one mile.

Another race in which there is much good natured rivalry between the riders is the special three-cornered match race between Jock McNeil, Morty Graves and Harry Swartz. A rider must win two of the three heats to cop the race, and each one of the trio is confident that he will take it in good style. The heats will be for one, two and three miles.

The evening feature, however, will be the Forrest Adair sweepstakes, a five-mile race with two-mile qualifying heats. The usual rules for qualifying prevailing.

Here is the complete program:

FIRST EVENT.

Southern Merchants' purse (one mile trial heats and two-mile final.) First heat—Swartz, McNeil, Luther.

SECOND EVENT.

Second heat, Merchants' purse—Graves, Renel, Richards.

THIRD EVENT.

Third heat, Merchants' purse—Lockner, Lewis, Glenn.

FOURTH EVENT.

Three-cornered match race (one mile.) First heat—Graves, Swartz, McNeil.

FIFTH EVENT.

Special match race (carried over from Friday, when Glenn won a heat and Lockner won a heat, while the other heat was declared a dead heat.) Two miles—Harry Glenn vs. George Lockner.

SIXTH EVENT.

Final heat, Merchants' purse (starters: winners of trial heats and second man in fastest heat.)

SEVENTH EVENT.

Second heat, three-cornered race (two miles)—Graves, Swartz, McNeil.

EIGHTH EVENT.

Forrest Adair sweepstakes (two-mile trial heats and five-mile final.) First heat—Glenn, Lockner, Richards.

NINTH EVENT.

Second heat, Forrest Adair sweepstakes—Luther, Lewis, Renel.

TENTH EVENT.

Third heat, three-cornered race (three miles)—Graves, Swartz, McNeil.

ELEVENTH EVENT.

Final Forrest Adair sweepstakes (Starters: winners and second in each trial heat and third man in fastest trial heat.)

Atlanta Gets A New Fielder

President Callaway, of the Atlanta Baseball association, received a telegram on Tuesday morning from Clark Griffith, of the Senators, that Calvo, his Cuban outfielder had been released to the Atlanta club and would report at once.

Amateur Champs In Big Series

The managers of the pennant-winning teams of the various amateur leagues of the city have gotten together and decided to play games for the championship of the city. The games will be played in an elimination round, the managers drawing for opponents. As soon as one team is defeated they drop from the race and so on down until the finals when the two teams that have come through unscarred.

The contesting teams will be as follows:

Standard Oil (Railroad league), Atlanta National Bank (Manufacturers' league), Agogas or Wesley (Buena league), First Baptist (Sunday School league), Exposition Mills (Saturday Afternoon league.)

Dent to Work Second Game

Team Out to Make Clean Sweep of Baron Series, Making Good Road Record

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 12.—With both teams within striking distance of first place, and the series standing 1 to 0 in favor of the Crackers, the home team will again try to stop their rush this afternoon.

The hurling work for Atlanta will be done by Dent. Chapman doing the receiving.

Manager Molesworth has not yet decided whether he will use Hardgrove or Gregory on the mound with Mayer behind the plate.

On account of the rivalry between the teams a good contest is assured.

Detroit Gets H. Coveleskie

Harry Coveleskie, who has for two years been the mainstay of the Chattanooga Lookouts, will get another big league trial next season. This time it will be with the Detroit American team.

His last tryout was with the Philadelphia Nationals, and they turned him over to the Lookout bunch in the Southern.

Since that time the Pole is growing stronger and stronger and for next season Detroit has her eyes on him.

His price has not been announced, but it is understood that he will bring a cash consideration and several players to the Chattanooga club.

Cooper to Chance

PETERSBURG, Va., Aug. 12.—Pitcher Ray Cooper, of the local team of the Virginia league, has been sold to the New York Americans. Cooper was bought by the local club from the navy, having shown much class with the team of teh battleship Vermont.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 12.—Pitcher William Robertson, with Schmidt doing the catching, will work for the home team in the second game of the Mobile and Montgomery series this afternoon, while the program calls for Manager John Dobbs to work Charley Case or Manning, with Gribbens doing the catching.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 12.—Glavenich and Yantis, for New Orleans, vs. Newton and Seabough, for Memphis, were the battery selections for the first game of the series this afternoon. A doubleheader is scheduled for tomorrow. The weather was clear and warm.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 12.—In the last game of the Nashville-Chattanooga series here today the battery for Chattanooga will be Grimes and Street, while Morse and Gibson will be the battery for Nashville. The weather continues fair.

Batting Figures

Agler boosted his average a heavy stick work in the Birmingham game Monday. Tommy Long's average has suffered a slump of a few points lately, but he will probably send it back up. The figures here included Monday's games with the Barons:

WHITE HURTS CHANCES BY DELAYED ARRIVAL

Atlantians have witnessed such good boxing matches as the O'Keefe-Whitney, Thomas-Whitney, Abel-Brown and several of the heavyweight class, but they have yet to have in store for them as much real excitement and clever boxing as is to be shown in the ten-round match between Frankie Whitney and Charley White, two crack lightweights. The bout is scheduled for the auditorium-armory for Wednesday night, and is to be held in conjunction with ten-round matches between Mike Saul and Eddie Hanlon and Kid Young and Charlie Lee.

True to his custom of being on hand and in jam-up shape Frank Whitney is already in Atlanta, and is working overtime to be ready to put up a real classy exhibition of the fistic art. He has been with us for three or four days, and to date has worked out a number of skirmishes at the club with his sparring partner. And he is certainly in grand shape.

Charlie White, who tis to be Whitney's opponent, has not yet shown in Atlanta, despite his agreement to be here four days before the time for the match. The promoters were especially careful to specify that White be here in advance of the match, and his failure to show up on time is no fault of theirs.

A telegram received Sunday from Nate Lewis, White's manager, contained the information that the pair are at some small watering place in Tennessee and would be in Atlanta during Tuesday. As an excuse for stopping over in Tennessee it was mentioned that the Atlanta weather was a bit warm and might serve to get White out of shape. However, this is all rot, and White has not treated the promoters half fair in postponing his arrival until the day before the match.

Hanlon, Saul, Young and Lee, the principals in the two preliminary ten-round encounters, have been on hand for weeks and maybe they haven't put in a bunch of time working. The result is that they are primed for a real hard bout, and the whole program promises to be just as classy as the last one which was staged here.

With the arrival of White, which is to be Tuesday, everything will be all right. The fans will be satisfied and with the boys fighting for the right to meet Jack Britton, that whirlwind, there is sure to be plenty of good hitting.

COBB VS. JACKSON

Cobb gained slightly on Jackson in Monday's battle. He got four at bats and two hits, while Jackson was up five times in getting the same number of bingles.

Hit the Ball And Won Game

Gilbert Price Came Back Very Strong and Had Baron Club Helpless

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. Aug. 12.—Gilbert Price returned to the game on yesterday and pitched a game which but for a little rally in the ninth would have been a shutout.

Meanwhile the sticks of his teammates were busy rapping out 13 hits. Especially prominent in this line were Agler and Holland. The former getting three hits out of five times up, the latter two out of three times up.

The Crackers solved Evans right from the start and scored two in the first inning and two more in the fourth, fifth and seventh. In many of the innings Atlanta filled the bases, and then some one came across with a single, driving two men over the plate.

It was another errorless game on the Crackers' score sheet, the fourth out of the last five, and although there are but two errors charged the Barons there were many slow plays which marred the game.

Giants' New Wonder Drops Final Game

LACROSSE, Wis., Aug. 12.—Pitching his last game in the Northern league before reporting to the New York Giants on August 15, "Rube" Schauer, of the Superior team, for whom Manager McGraw paid $15,000, was defeated here yesterday. LaCrosse winning 2 to 0. Kramer for LaCrosse allowed but three hits, while seven drives were bunched off the pitching of the new Giant.

Braves Strengthening For Next Season

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—The Boston Nationals have secured four additional new men toward strengthening the team for next season. Two are infielders and two are outfielders. The infielders are Dugey, second baseman of the Waco, Tex., league club, and McCluskey, a third baseman, of the Albany, Ga., club, of the South Atlantic league. From the Dallas club the Boston Braves have secured two outfielders—Wilson and Frank Kite. Umpire, Derrick.

WIND UP WEEK'S PLAY WITHOUT LOSING GAME

PICK DENT TO GO UP

A sport writer of the New York World predicts that Dent, of the Atlanta team, will again go up and stick. He says:

Elliott Dent, a tall southerner who has displayed his pitching wares in the big league as a member of the Brooklyn team, is being primed by the Atlanta team of the Southern league for a come-back effort. Dent pitches only mediocre ball until midseason. Then he begins to round into such rare form as to keep all the big league scouts chasing him.

In two trials with the Brooklyn team Dent showed coolness under fire, but he did not appear to have enough on the ball to mystify big league hitters. Last year he was farmed to the Newark International league club and taken from that team by Washington. After a spring workout with Griffith's outfit Dent was shipped to Atlanta. Until the last few weeks he did not do anything startling, but being a native of Georgia he was a drawing card. Now he is starting his annual spurt for fame.

Last year he won eleven of the last twelve games he pitched for Newark and had all the critics wondering whether he would get over his habit of slow development once he got back into the majors. A player who has followed Dent's career closely declares that the pitcher's interests are in his farm in Maryland and that it takes him at least two months after the beginning of the baseball season to forget about the fishing and hunting he enjoys during the previous winter.

Races Proved Featurless

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 12.—Racing at the opening of the grand circuit meet at the state fair grounds was rather tame. The only real contest was in the board of commerce stake for 2:16 pacers, which went five heats before Margot Hal was returned a winner. Dillon Axsworthy by far the best of the ten starters, won the trotting division of the matron stake: Tillie Tipton, the favorite, was third in the Laird Dewey the 2:15 trot, all in straight heats.

It took Margot Hal some time to win the grind in the board of commerce stake, but when she finally found a stride she made a show of her opponents. Ray Key was drawn at the conclusion of the second heat and Brand led all the way in the second and third heats and then McDonald got Margot Hal in the fourth and two races like a team a dozen lengths ahead of the field in the fourth heat until the top of the stretch was reached. Margot Hal forged ahead. In the final round Margot Hal was a block ahead all the way and was slowed down to a walk at the end.

Montgomery and Memphis Go Strong—The Crackers Played Great Ball in the Field During the Past Week

The pace in the Southern league race during the week which closed Saturday was made by the Montgomery and Memphis teams, each getting away with a percentage of 1.000. Memphis taking the big honors by reason of winning four straight games against but three for Montgomery. Nashville and Chattanooga are the other two teams that managed to keep over the .500 percentage mark.

Atlanta and Birmingham managed to get away with a fair article of the game, while New Orleans and Mobile played a most rotten exhibition. Nothing more was expected of the Pelicans, but for the Finn club to go all to pieces was quite out of the ordinary. Finn has been picked all along to keep right in the running for the big honors and up to pieces at such a critical moment is injuring the chances.

The Atlanta club has been doing fair work on the road and last week got away with two wins and four defeats. This, however, put the club just one short of an even break and the victory Sunday over the Vols made it all even, while Monday's defeat of Birmingham gave the Atlantians a one game margin. One of the most remarkable features of the work of the Crackers in the mellee last week was the playing of three of the four games against the Vols in an errorless manner.

The three wins credited to Montgomery came over Mobile and New Orleans, two being registered against the Pels. Memphis won four battles from Mobile and New Orleans, taking two games from each.

Montgomery, Mobile, New Orleans, Nashville and Memphis enjoyed three successive off days and for this reason the standing has not undergone such a severe shake up. Atlanta, Nashville, Birmingham and Chattanooga did the four, Chattanooga taking five and dropping three, Birmingham getting three and losing five, while Nashville won four and lost two.

Here are the scores during the past week:

Sunday, Montgomery, 6-12-0; Mobile, 5-9-0; Nashville, 9-14-0; Birmingham, 2-10-0; Memphis, 5-13-0; New Orleans, 1-8-0; Memphis, 6-6-0; New Orleans, 4-10-0.

Monday: Atlanta, 5-10-3; Chattanooga, 2-6-3; Nashville, 7-7-2; Birmingham, 6-8-4.

Tuesday: Chattanooga, 2-6-2; Atlanta, 1-6-1; Birmingham, 9-14-0; Nashville, 4-12-3.

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

A vast collection of words has been employed from time to time in outlining the list of stars who operate beneath the big tent. These are the ones who draw the headlines and the old hip-hip! The Johnsons, Cobbs, Bakers, Mathewsons, Jacksons, etc., crowd the spotlight with only a few sparsely scattered intervals here and there left for the rest of the clan.

But the stars, after all, are not the only people who comprise the big show and deliver the goods. There are others in the game besides the luminaries of mound and bat.

BRINGING IN G. BURNS.

The brilliant athlete is rarely the steadiest. Yet it must be worth something for one who isn't brilliant to be ranked as the steadiest in his league. This man, in the National league, according to John McGraw, is Prof. G. Burns, left fielder for the Giants.

McGraw believes that Burns has picked up where Jimmy Sheckard left off as the athlete who is most consistent in every department of the game. This does not mean he is the best left fielder, but that of all ball players in the National league circuit he is dependable from more shifting angles.

THE WHYS AND WHEREFORES.

"It is rather aweeping statement," says McGraw, "to get up and say that a first year man is the steadiest ball player in a big league which embraces 200 players. But in the case of Burns I don't believe there can be any great argument. To begin with, he is out there every day in good shape to play the his best. He is also one of the surest, steadiest outfielders I ever saw. He is deadly on fly balls, perfect in judging them and sure in his catch. In addition to this, he plays ground balls like an infielder and has a fine arm.

"Burns," says McGraw, "is also one of the steadiest hitters of the game. He isn't any long distance slugger, but he is in there every day with his wallop. At one stage this season he traveled twenty games without missing a hit. This part of his play can be judged from the averages, which show him with more safe hits than an other ball player in the National league, barring Jake Daubert. He was the first National leaguer to make 100 hits, and while his general average isn't over .300, he is holding an even pace."

ALL SEVEN DAYS.

"I consider Burns," adds McGraw, "one of the most remarkable youngsters of the game. You see many of them break in like Cobb or Jackson or Speaker, who are naturally brilliant performers. But how often do you see a first-year man, a young recruit, step out as the last word is steadiness? Not very. This goes for him mentally as well as physically, for his judgment is always good and in the proper direction. When you consider the fact that here in a first-year man we have a fast, sure outfielder who is also good on ground balls and who is there with a fine arm, who is a consistent hitter and a fine base runner and who can be depended upon in every department, it is not so hard to understand why I rate Burns as the steadiest ball player in our league and as the successor to Jimmy Sheckard, who was practically the same type."

THE TWO CIRCUITS.

The discussion anent Burns recalls the fact that while the older circuit carries more steady, consistent outfielders, the clan who wear the laurel of fame belong almost exclusively to the younger league. There isn't an outfielder for all-round worth in the National league to be compared to Cobb, Jackson, Speaker or Milan. What is more, there isn't an outfielder in the National league who might be rated as an all-round star, who might be considered in any all-American pick.

OTHER COMPARISON.

A pleasant time and a genial argument can always be had by suggesting to members of one circuit that the other is stronger in certain departments. We happen to know, because we have tried it out with astonishing oratorical results.

For example, the old argument as to which league carries the stoutest pitching. This always means a war of words. The National points to Mathewson, Marquard, Alexander, Seaton, Rucker, Cheney, Salee, Hendrix, Camnitz, Adams, etc.

The American counters with Johnson, Bender, Plank, Wood, Gregg and others. We have an idea here that the National has a slight edge in stars, but that in everyday effectiveness there are more good pitchers in the younger circuit.

CATCHERS.

The National undoubtedly leads in catchers, with Archer, Meyers, Dooin, Bresnahan, Wingo and two or three more of rank. The American league has a number of first-class people back of the plate, but not nearly as many, although in Schalk and Schang and Agnew there are three youngsters coming on who must soon take their place around the crest.

In the meanwhile, it is just as well for the National to remember that it needs an early running start for the next world's series. If Giants or Phillies fail upon this occasion, it will mean four straight championships for the younger league, the first time in w. s. history that either league has established a widespread margin of four in a row.

FOREIGN STARS COMPETE HERE

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Not in years has so much attention been focused upon an athletic meeting as that which has been centered on the "greatest games of the decade" under the auspices of the Greater New York fair and exposition, carded for decision at Empire City park August 21, 22 and 23, with the evening of the middle date being given over to the marathon race over the regulation distance for the governor's trophy.

Not alone will the majority of the American "champs" be seen in competition, but a number of the best of the foreigners who took part in the Olympic games are expected to compete. These men include Taipale, the discus marvel, whose best efforts completely smothered the best of the Americans and the men of other nations who competed against him; Sararisto, the Finn, whose javelin throwing was conceded to be the most marvelous ever witnessed; Hans Braun, the German middle distance runner, who followed Sheppard and Meredith over half of Europe and finally up into Scotland in an endeavor to prove to the former Olympic champion that he was the best man; W. H. Appleyard, the English champion sprinter, and probably the greatest distance runner of all time; Jean Bouin, of Marseilles, France, who recently ran nearly twelve miles in an hour, breaking the long distance record of Alfie Shrubb, the one-time great of all runners over a distance of ground from one mile to fifteen.

One of the best records on the books today is that of Maxey Long, the former Columbia university and New York A. C. short distance runner, whose 47 seconds for a straightaway quarter of a mile has stood unapproached since it was made in 1900 at the Guttenburg race track. But at last American athletics has produced a man in the persons of C. H. Haff, of Michigan, the present champion 440 yards man of America, both A. A. U. and intercollegiate, whose recent grand running at Boston and Chicago when he annexed both titles in convincing fashion, appears to give him a pre-eminent right to make a successful essay at the long standing mark.

At any rate, it is Haff's intention to make a most strenuous effort to wipe out the world's best record at the distance, and on all sides it is conceded that he is the one man who, if the time can be erased from the books, is capable of such a performance. The conditions of the event make it essential that a man shall have the requisite amount of early speed and the striding ability to carry him through the long "sprint" at a uniform pace, picked up his bag of clubs and threw them in the water after the balls. The act occurred early in the round, and remembering that he had many bets of a dollar and upward a hole, he had to humiliate himself by paying a caddy a dollar to wade out into the pond and recover the baby-soaked bag.

This same man now takes misfortune or defeat like a man, and every time I happen to meet him, which is once or twice a year, there is a twinkle in his eye which shows that he is still ashamed of himself for that childish outburst of several years ago.

The man who whacks his ball away from the cup every time he misses a short putt, sometimes tearing out a huge bit of turf at the holeside, is one of the sort that will be improved by playing golf if his friends handle him right and show him that by so doing he is not only damaging valuable property, but may be spoiling a putt for some friend who follows him around.

STRAIGHT DRIVE.

HIS BALL AND CHAIN ---BY RIPLEY

MANY PLAYERS ARE HURT BY FREE USE OF BOOZE

Mike Kelly was one of the few who could bat around .300 day and night successfully, but this doesn't prove anything, even as an exception to a deadly certain rule. If Mike had steered away from that all night part of it he might have batted around .400 or better.

If Sockalexis, the Indian whirlwind, had laid off the juice of the grape and the corn his name today would be linked with that of Anson, Lajoie, Delahanty and Cobb as one of the few wonder hitters of the game. If Raymond had never soused he would probably rank today as the pitching marvel of the pastime.

Raymond probably started with more than any young pitcher in all history. His debut battle was in the Southern league about eight years ago.

Pitching for Atlanta, he was slated to step in that afternoon against the world's champion Boston team, led by Collins, Mathewson, Walsh nor Johnson, as they are today, could have looked as impressive. Bugs was big and strong with a flawless pitching motion, that carried no touch of waste effort. He had the smoke of Vesuvius and a curve ball that cracked off with the snap of a plucked icicle. His control was deadly, and, above all, he had unbeatable poise and a universe of confidence.

A youngster, pitching against the world's champs, he began kidding them from the start. Jimmy Collins looked the same to him as some bat boy in the Fried Ham circuit. He worked the full nine rounds, shut Boston out with two hits and whiffed ten men. And at 10 o'clock that night was just starting on his second quart.

If Raymond had only stalked the straight and narrow he had high chance of being the best pitcher in the world, and in place of being through today with that wonderful pitching motion of his, he could have given Cy Young's twenty-two seasons a tough run, with an even chance of beating the Paoli Phenom to Time's record goal line. The only wonder is that the renowned insect could have carried as far as he did when one figures what he carried the greater part of the distance.

The ordinary athlete would have caved in before Raymond had gone a year under the same bacchanalian burden.

CONTROL OF SELF TAUGHT GOLF IN WORKING ON LINKS

Playing golf has done more to teach many a man greater self-control than all his childhood or business training. No one can acquire any degree of progress at golf until he has learned by experience—bitter or otherwise—that he must maintain a high order of self-control. He soon learns that, to lose his temper over a bad shot or some seemingly unlucky incident, is to bring on additional trouble and make even respectable scoring impossible.

No one really becomes an expert or even a high-class average player until he has learned to forget a bad shot as soon as it is made and cheerfully overlook the thousand and one little incidents that go to make the game the great mental trainer and fascinating pastime and recreation that it is.

I know one man who has been fairly successful in business who a few years ago got so mad after a bad shot that he would break a club over his knee or throw it into the woods and threaten to kill the caddy who dared to offer to go after it. He was hot headed and then some.

Gradually this player found his friends less and less desirous of playing with him and they told him the reason why. Today he is back in their good graces and takes his bad plays or misfortunes with a fortitude that must be satisfactory to himself. His friends think a heap more of him for controlling a quick temper that we all know still lurks under the skin.

Incidentally this same man is more successful in his business than ever before. He probably hurled chairs about the office and broke windows in the old days when things didn't go his way. Today he is more rational in every phase of his life and has learned that you can catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar. Golf has done much for him, as it has for thousands of others.

Another hot-tempered individual of the past was a man who, after driving five balls into a pond ahead of a

Starrsville Wins

STARRSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 12.—The local team defeated Porterdale here. The score was 12 to 6. Batteries for Starrsville, O. Jones and Miller; for Porterdale, West and Worsham.

Aaron played a fast game for the locals and made four hits in as many times at bat. The all-round work of M. Jones featured. A. Goins made a clean home run.

Rich Takes Game

M. Rich & Bros.' Junior team met and defeated the Davis Street Sluggers by the score of 11 to 10, making seven consecutive victories for the Rich boys. The game proved a pitchers' duel, each man fanning 21 opponents. Wheeler featured the game with a screaming home run for Rich's in the ninth inning.

Polo Matches In Big Meet

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. —Universal polo will be the opening feature incident to the department of live stock at the Panama-Pacific International exposition.

Polo enthusiasm is spreading all over the world, and it is proposed to have ten or fifteen days of polo, beginning with the opening day of the exposition.

A series of elimination matches will be arranged, and because of climatic advantages a number of the established teams will winter their ponies in California.

There will be a grand stand which will seat 18,000, and its capacity will be taxed during the great tournament, which will be held on the exposition grounds.

The question of cups and prizes is now being considered. If the Hurlingham cup still remains in this country, it is possible that the international polo match can be held here. That, of course, is a question which can only be decided by time, but in any event representative teams from many countries will be attracted to a universal meet here.

Former Stars Going Back

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 12.—Honus Wagner, the German demon, and Larry Lajoie, the French slugger, stars in the big leagues, and regarded as the best batsman in their respective circuits for several seasons, have both been touched by the iron hand of fate this season. Injuries and accidents have kept the two famous stars on bench duty and have assisted materially Old Father Time in hastening the approaching termination of their big league careers.

During late years Lajoie has been partly obscured by a rising young star, Ty Cobb. Wagner had no such celebrity to contend with and drew more praise than his former rival for sticking honors. Now Jackson, Speaker and Cobb have all gone above the famous Nap as sluggers because of their speed, while he has been slowing up.

Both men are physical marvels, and have been shining examples for hundreds of younger ball players, who rose and sank in the big league firmament, while Honus and Larry continued to shine with unbedimmed luster.

Wagner was never a manager, and not being ambitious in that line, saved many gray locks and escaped many of the burdens which Lajoie labored under. When the taps are sounded for careers of these two famous baseball celebrities both will probably retire on their laurels, without spending any of the remaining baseball years on the minor league diamonds. As drawing cards both will be good for perhaps ten years, but their major league careers are slowly but surely drawing to a close.

The Corinthian football club, of England, the premier amateur association football club, will shortly send a team to Brazil to play several matches against local and representative elevens of Santos, Sao Paula and Rio de Janeiro.

Small Athlete Among Champs

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—When it comes to choosing "the most remarkable athlete" one cannot overlook Bruno Brodd, the sensational lightweight man of the Irish-American. Standing but "five feet five" and weighing only 138 pounds, she has the distinction of being the smallest champion among the weight men.

His specialty is throwing the javelin, and today he stands out as the best man in America for that event. He has won numerous championships and at different times has held the American record. Last year at the Olympic tryouts Harry Lott, of the Mohawks, annexed the record and the same year won the championship at Pittsburg.

Undaunted, Brodd kept on working hard all winter, and early last spring told his friends that he hoped to win back his lost laurels. True to his predictions he established a new American record for the javelin at the N. Y. A. C. games by making the grand heave of 169 feet 11 1-2 inches. On top of this he won the national title for the event at the recent championships held in Chicago, disposing of the classiest kind of a field.

Brodd is confident of his ability to get the spear out close to 200 feet before the season closes. If he does, he should be a big contender for the honors at Berlin three years hence.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Several small sales were announced on Tuesday and on Monday there were an unusual number of residence permits taken.

This increased activity among small builders is the strongest indication of easier money. From now on a steady increase will be noted in the number of bungalows and cottages. Gradually this activity will be communicated to larger operations.

WHITEHALL TERRACE SALE.

The old I. S. Mitchell home place at 37 Whitehall Terrace, has been sold. J. T. Kimbrough sold this property as an investor for $4,000. The lot is 76x150.

OTHER SALES.

Mr. Kimbrough announced the following sales:

For A. G. Dallis to George R. Sanders, 15 Queen street, a cottage on a 40x54x176, for $3,750; for W. J. Jackson to E. G. Rubera, a lot on Stovall street, 50x200, for $750; for J. H. Boylston to Mrs. Lula Powell, 56 Dill avenue for $1,750; for W. S. Witham to A. G. Hayes a lot 40x200 on Peachtree road near the Witham property for $2,500, Mr. Witham taking six acres in the rear, valued at $1,600 as part payment. Mr. Hayes is the best on Peachtree street connecting his property in the rear with Peachtree road.

Kimbrough also sold for O. M. Wells to J. H. Salmon 22 Pearce street, a dwelling on a lot 52x150, for $1,100, and for Smilow and Miller to T. B. Gusley, 160 acres of land three miles north of Fort Valley for $9,000.

GEORGIA-ALICE SALE.

The Martin-Ozburn Realty company has sold for Mrs. Bessie Ricard and Mrs. M. Dupree, 297 East Georgia avenue, a six-room cottage, for $3,500.

MOTOR COMPANY T OMOVE.

The United Motor company, Atlanta, now at Maxwell street and Peachtree, will move from its present location on Peachtree street at the head of Currier street, to the building on the Peachtree lands of Tuggle, Black & Calhoun for lease.

The reason for moving is that this company does a wholesale business only, and will accordingly seek a warehouse location, and rent an office in some central location.

There have been two propositions already made for the Peachtree street location.

In fact, there will be some important announcements shortly of new leases and building on Peachtree street.

NOON REALTY MEETINGS.

Hereafter the monthly meetings of the Atlanta Real Estate Exchange will be held at noon instead of at night. President Harris White made this announcement on Tuesday.

The first meeting will be held on next Friday at 12:30 o'clock at the Motel Ansley, when the members will gather at a luncheon.

The delegates who attended the real estate convention at Nashville returned home full of enthusiasm and valuable things to say about what they observed at this convention, which was attended by the foremost real estate men of the nation.

Market in New York Closed Unchanged to 3 Off From the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—There was nothing in this morning's weather news to confirm yesterday's predictions of an early break in the Southwestern drouth and cotton opened steady, unchanged to 1 point higher. There was demand from recent sellers who apprehended a bullish weather report and prices for new crop positions sold 9 to 10 points higher during early trading. This advance was in the face of indifferent Liverpool cables and private advices of continental selling.

Private reports of showers at two or three points in Texas but otherwise the southwest continued dry.

The market was quiet later in the morning but continued steady and prices held within a point of two of the best on deliveries. Reports from the southwest and the forecast for continued fair weather in Oklahoma.

Estimated receipts today 5,000 bales.

The bullish weekly weather report appeared to have been discounted by the early advance and the market was easier on change during the afternoon under realizing on new crop months of Houston. Prices lost about half their improvement, ruling 7 to 9 points and higher.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 12.—Cotton futures opened steady at unchanged to 2 points decline. Cables were hardly up to expectations, but the continued drouth in the western cotton belt held prices up. The market was dull in the early trading with no pronounced trend one way or the other. Offerings were light as bears were nervous over weather conditions, especially as the forecast promised little change. At the end of the first half hour of business prices were 4 to 5 points over yesterday's closing.

The market was quiet but very steady throughout the morning session. Very little short selling came in and offerings were scanty and not sufficiently large, except at times, the very moderate inquiry. Numerous telegrams of a bullish nature came in from Texas, some of them claiming that rain was spreading and relieving because of the heat and dry weather. The weekly government report at 9 o'clock was fully as bullish as expected and confirmed private reports of the drouthy conditions in the west. At the highest the trading months were 10 to 8 points over yesterday's last quotations.

Local mill buying was fair.

Closed very steady 3 to 6 over.

COTTON SEED PRODUCTS

MEMPHIS, Aug. 12.—Cotton seed products, prices at mills: Crude oil, per pound; meal $31.50@ 32.00; linters 2½@3¼c.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Chisholm-Boyd: Private reports are being received in numbers from the southwest attesting of general deterioration, but the trade here is so intensely bearish and speculative that these reports have little or no effect.

Raymond, Pynchon & Co.: We do not look for much further improvement in prices under present conditions.

Josephthal, Louchheim & Co.: We continue to advise sales on all strong spots.

Stearnton, Hammil & Co.: We feel that current prices are fair and the market can be advantageously sold on all rallies.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The market has ruled rather strong all day on continued hot, dry weather in the southwest belt. Brokers who represent the larger spot interests have been among the leading buyers today, and there has been considerable covering of shorts by commission houses. Wall street and the uptown crowd were also buyers on the bulge.

Outside of this selling, there was very little cotton offered.

The high temperatures continue in the west and southwest, and weather report just posted shows a bullish condition in parts of the belt. Mississippi, though the eastern belt in favorable and scattered showers are reported, on this section today for yesterday, though there are private reports of rain tonight in Georgia and Alabama from the lack of moisture in some sections.

Sentiment today is somewhat more bullish and higher prices are predicted for the present at least, but there is an element to the bullish market is entirely too high and are awaiting rain developments in the west to sell.—Anderson-Clayton.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: Expected rains did not fall in Oklahoma and Texas and the market was due to advance on the opening Monday morning. But Europe reflected no alarm. Arkansas reported splendid rains, Washington unsettled weather over Oklahoma and Texas, weather prophets among the trade said that Texas rains are imminent. Under the circumstances the market continued under the spell of Washington's legislative threat and hung fire. Recently students of the crop have devoted much time and thought to the effect of dry weather in Texas. One factor, undigesting its opinion on the general reports of lack of moisture made by the weather bureau itself was the unprecedented good crop advices now coming from the west, says the crop is fine, fruiting unusually well, shedding less by, and that those states no longer promise a shortfall yield. Another reaction, which has lessened the western rainfall records of other years, is equally certain that the present drouthy spell is not confined to Texas, but is confined to a very much smaller area than the trade now fears.

This it is that some traders adhere to the belief that a very large crop is on the way. Meanwhile the trade is apparently not being excellent, while others are now becoming convinced that the crop will soon suffer seriously from deterioration. Meantime new crop cotton is being absorbed to meet the increased requirement, just as the talent expected it would be. So a bullish demand for later shipments is small, a fact that robs the bull side of the strength of much attractiveness.

Dallas News: "Texas generally clear; rain Amarillo, El Paso. Oklahoma clear, hot."

Journal of Commerce says the volume of business passing in the spot goods trade advance. Meantime new crop cotton is being absorbed to meet the increased requirement, just as the talent expected it would be. So a bullish demand for later shipments is small, a fact

JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope

AUGUST 12.

If this is your birthdate, do not give way to despondency or discouragement.

In the first place, the very fact that this is your birthdate should give you the greatest joy, because you are surrounded by such helpful planetary conditions that success is bound to come if you will but quiet yourself, cease thinking of the faults of others and give yourself wholly to the helpful vibrations about you and stop resisting events and people.

Wonderful forces are yours to command. Admit into your life and thoughts only those things which are the highest and the most beautiful. Declare daily that only the good and beautiful and true have power to enter your life. Contemplate the highest in literature, music and art and immediately you will feel yourself surrounded by a different atmosphere and your life will begin to shape itself along lines far more agreeable and helpful to you.

If you are not already settled for the winter and wish to find a new apartment, a different locality, you will be rewarded by watching The Journal Want Ads carefully and you would get good results by stating what you wish for, in a home or boarding house by advertising through a Journal Want Ad.

Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal—see first Want Page. For charge ads, ask that they be sent "Free," or telephone them to Main 2000 or Atlanta 423.

A Commercial Poultry Plant In Georgia. That Is Making Good

THREE years ago this month Mr. J. L. Reinhardt, of Colbert, Ga., caught the chicken fever. He ordered a 110-capacity Prairie State incubator, a 100-chick capacity brooder and 110 Rhode Island Red eggs, at an outlay of $40. From these eggs Mr. Reinhardt hatched seventy-six chicks, and raised a larger per cent of these fowls. From this beginning he gained knowledge and experience, and by putting brains and work together the same as he has used in his successful banking business he has today undoubtedly the best and most profitable poultry plant in the state. There is no room for doubt seriously is there is a better one with a better future anywhere to be found in the United States.

With only a limited amount of money Mr. Reinhardt purchased twelve acres of land well adapted to the raising of poultry at Colbert, Ga., and today on this twelve acres can be found the best equipped poultry plant in this country and it fairly covered with as good a lot of White Leghorns as can be found in the United States, none barred. Not less than 6,000 birds are on this place today, betwen 3,000 and 4,000 of them being this year's hatched pullets, and some one thousand of these pullets just beginning to lay. Such an outlay of birds as can be found on this place would be hard to find anywhere in the United Stafes and could not be bought for any reasonable money from any breeder. A man who has such a lot of birds will not sell them because he knows they can make him more money in a short time than anyone would be willing to pay for them.

By the use of a 6,500 capacity Candee incubator, and the Simplex brooder stoves, which have a capacity of brooding 1,000 to 1,500 young chicks in one room an' in addition the colony brooders with Prairie State hovers Mr. Reinhardt has succeeded this year in raising this splendid lot of chickens, he having sold most of the cockerels as broilers and fryers and retained the pullets. In addition to what he now has on his place he has sold some 10,000 day-old hatched chicks.

He regular established market for fresh eggs which are shipped three to five times each week has made for Mr. Reinhardt a substantial income every day that will more than maintain the plant if he never sold any fowls at all.

With the work of two men on this place things are kept in smooth running order and a future for at least a $15,000 to $20,000 annual business another year is in sight. The land on which the colony houses are located and the young chickens reared with unlimited range according to nature was planted to wheat last fall and is now in a splendid growing fine and will make an abundance of corn and also furnish splendid shade for the young chicks. Two branches running through this place gives plenty running water and makes an ideal range for the young pullets to develop according to nature, and pullets raised in this way will be useful and profitable for at least four years, where if they must be penned in small yards they would not be one-half so profitable and their usefulness would not extend over two years at the outside.

Not a sick or droopy chicken could be seen on the entire premises, and the hens and a great many of the pullets were laying almost equal to spring of the year. It speaks well for the management of this place to see such a large flock of chickens in such perfect health and turning out eggs at this time of the year when a great many towls are doing nothing.

A small field of alfalfa is growing on this place and both the old and young chickens have had every day an unlimited supply of green cut alfalfa. Four acres more will be planted this fall and it will more than cut the fed bill in half and in addition keep the chickens in health that no other feed would do or take the place of. It will show not only this plant but many others how to overcome the problem of high price feed.

Yours very truly,

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

PODOLAX

It does all that calomel did without the bad effects. It even tastes good. There is no sickening, no griping, no salivation. Tomorrow you will show up smiling. After a few days you'll be your old self again. You'll be on your mettle and in fighting trim.

Buy a bottle of PODOLAX. Try it. If it don't do all that we claim take it right back again and get your money. Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey for Coughs and Colds. Look for the Bell.
